The Normandy State Bank at 7301 Natural Bridge road, Normandy, was robbed of about $13,000 today by an armed man who worked so quietly 20 customers were unaware a holdup was in progress.

Tom Hennessy, clerk in a post office adjoining the bank, fired a pistol shot at the robber as he was fleeing in an automobile which had been parked nearby at Pasadena boulevard and Florissant road.

The bullet pierced the door on the right side of the robber's car, a 1950 Studebaker, and lodged in the seat. Hennessy had a chance to shoot at the man as he ran past the post office, but withheld his fire for fear of endangering his life.

Vaults Over Railing.

After entering the bank, the robber went first to desks to the left of the entrance at which Gilbert F. Alsmeier, cashier, and Lee Parks, loan department employee, were seated.

"The man vaulted over the railing in front of our desks and said: 'Give me your money,'" Alsmeier told the Post-Dispatch. "I said: 'You're kidding.'"

"He cocked the revolver he had and said: 'No, I'm not. Take me to the vault.'

As Alsmeier and Parks were being marched to the rear of the bank, to the vault, Henry H. Seib, executive vice president of the bank, saw them.

"I asked what was going on," Seib related. "The robber turned stuck his gun in my ribs and told me to keep back."

Run to Post Office.

Seib dashed from the bank to the post office and asked Hennessy to call police. In the meantime, the robber, forcing Alsmeier and Parks to accompany him, stopped at a teller's cage and emptied the contents of a cash drawer into a long canvas bag he carried. Then they went to the vault.

The vault was locked, but Roy Howe, a note teller, was ordered to produce a key and unlock it. Since it appeared to contain nothing but silver, the robber turned away and went to savings teller cages occupied by James Couillard and William Pound. He then took the money in their cash drawers.

When Seib returned from the post office, the man was still in the bank, gathering loot. Seib tried to get someone to help him seize the robber, but, failing in this, he threw a paperweight as the man fled out the door. The weight missed and struck a typewriter.

No Alarm System.

The Normandy State Bank does not have an alarm system for summoning police by pressing a button. There was a brief delay in informing police of the

NAVY JET PLANE INQUIRY URGED BY SYMINGTON AND KARSTEN

They Want Congress to Look Into J-40 Engine, Found Unsatisfactory in Fighter Produced Here.

An investigation of the Navy's handling of its jet fighter procurement program and its cancellation last year of $372,000,000 in plane and engine contracts was urged today by Senator Stuart Symington and Representative Frank M. Karsten of St. Louis.

They said they believed Congressional committees should look into the history of the J-40 jet engine, produced by Westinghouse Electric Corp., which was used to power early models of the Demon and Cutlass fighter planes and then found to be unsatisfactory.

Demon Is Produced Here.

The Demon, designated the F3H, is produced by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. at Lambert-St. Louis Field. The Cutlass is produced by Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc., of Dallas, Tex. The Westinghouse engine was found not to be powerful enough for either of the planes.

Senator Symington said he believed the Senate Military Preparedness Investigating subcommittee, part of the Armed Services Committee, should look into the matter. The subcommittee, of which he is a member, already had planned to check into airplane profits in the procurement programs of the armed services, he said.

Symington, who served as the first Secretary of the Air Force, said it was his opinion the responsibility for failure of the engine to supply enough power for the plane was shared by the Navy and Westinghouse. He said he would urge the subcommittee to make every effort to determine responsibility.

A number of planes produced by McDonnell and Chance Vought for the Navy crashed during test operations. About 50 of the old model Demons, with the J-40 engines, have not been moved from the McDonnell plant here and will not be used by the Navy unless they can be modified and more powerful Allison J-71 engines installed.

The 50 planes cost more than $65,000,000 to produce. Twenty-nine can be modified at a cost of about $4,250,000. It was estimated. The other 21 planes probably will be used in ground testing operations.

The Navy last November announced cancellation of contracts for 96 Chance Vought airplanes and unspecified radar equipment and similar gear.

Letter by Karsten.

Representative Karsten wrote a letter yesterday to Representative William L. Dawson, chairman of the House Committee on Government Operations, calling on him to consider ordering a full investigation "to study the procurement practices of the Navy Department and assess responsibility in this matter."

"More important," he wrote, "we must see to it that appropriate steps are taken in order that there will not be a recurrence of such errors in the future in the procurement of naval and other aircraft."

Karsten added that Navy Department spokesman indicated 21 of the planes manufactured by McDonnell would be used only for testing and research and probably would not leave the ground.

Manufacturers of the Westinghouse engine contend that if the engine provided was not adequate it is not the fault of Westinghouse, but of the Navy, he wrote. "The Navy has declined to fix responsibility. Evidence of the plane's unsuitability and faulty design is demonstrated by the fact that, out of the 56 which were built, six have crashed during test flights, killing two of the pilots."

G.O.P. Chances Cut if President Can't Run, State Leaders Agree

Politicians of Both Parties Say Republicans Need Eisenhower—Voice Hope for Recovery.

Republican and Democratic leaders in Missouri said:

"The President's illness has made the question of whether he will run again strictly a matter of health. No one can say just what effect his inability to seek re-election, if that situation develops, will have on the Republicans' chances of victory because he would be considerably weakened if he is not a candidate."

All expressed sorrow that the President had been stricken by a heart attack and voiced hope he will have a "speedy and full recovery."

A. D. (Bud) Welsh, Republican national committeeman from Missouri, said the news of the President's illness came as a terrific shock."

"I do not think anyone has any idea as to what might happen if Mr. Eisenhower becomes incapacitated," Welsh said. "He has been one in a million and would be hard to replace. We all hope he can carry on."

"The Republicans' chances would not be as good without him. It would be a tough assignment for us to find anyone as great as he is and with as much popular appeal in a short time. However, I believe the Republicans would be able to come up with a good presidential candidate and win the election."

Democratic Comment.

Mark R. Holloran, Missouri's Democratic national committeeman, said:

"I hope the President recovers as quickly as possible and not as seriously ill as some of the reports indicated."

Commenting upon the possible effect upon next year's election if Mr. Eisenhower does not seek a second term, Holloran added:

"Certainly, he is the Republican's strongest candidate. It is hard to believe they could find another man who would have the popular appeal Mr. Eisenhower has. I believe the Democrats' chances for victory next year would be greatly enhanced if he is not a candidate for re-election."

President Eisenhower carried Missouri by 29,595 votes in the 1952 election, although the Democrats won all the state offices at stake in the election. Gov. Phil M. Donnelly won by a 97,899-vote margin over the Republican gubernatorial nominee, Howard Elliott.

Governor Wires President.

In a telegram to the President yesterday, Donnelly said, "the people of Missouri join me in sincere best wishes for your early and complete recovery." The Governor declined to comment on the possible effect of the President's illness on the political picture next year.

Lawrence K. Roos, a former Republican State Representative, who served as chairman of the Greater St. Louis Eisenhower campaign organization three years ago, expressed "deep sorrow" over the President's illness. Commenting upon the political effects it might have, he said:

"If he is unable to run for a second term, it will bring home more clearly than ever the need for the Republicans to build a strong organization. The President himself only recently pointed out that the party should not depend upon one man. The work of rebuilding the organization should have started long ago."

"I believe other candidates can be elected, if we work, but Mr. Eisenhower has a tremendous following among independent voters and the Democrats. We would have to find another candidate who could attract these voters."

QUESTION OF WHO RUNS U.S. WHEN PRESIDENT IS ILL

Constitution Is Vague

— Hagerty Asks for Opinion—Two Presidents Cited.

By LEE NICHOLS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (UPI)—President Eisenhower's illness has raised an ancient question: who runs the Government when the President is ill?

The Constitution provides that the powers of the Presidency "shall devolve" on the Vice President in case of the chief executive's death, resignation, or "inability to discharge" the powers and duties of his office.

But no legal body has ever decided what constitutes "inability" to handle the Presidency or who shall decide when a President is in such a state.

It was disclosed yesterday by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that the problem of finding someone to make decisions for the President, if it becomes necessary, is under consideration.

Hagerty has asked Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers for an opinion "any action that might be necessary at any time for any delegation of powers" by the President and "if any are permitted."

Hagerty disclosed his action when asked what would happen if Mr. Eisenhower was not able to sign necessary official documents, or if his physicians refused to let him sign them.

Only Two in History.

Thus far in American history, only two Presidents—James A. Garfield and Woodrow Wilson—have been unable to discharge their official duties for considerable periods of time.

Garfield was disabled July 2, 1881, when he was shot by an assassin. He died the following Sept. 19.

Wilson collapsed Sept. 25, 1919, while on a speaking tour defending the Versailles treaty. He did not recover sufficiently to call his cabinet until the following April.

The historian Edward S. Corwin, in his volume "The President, Office & Powers," records that in both cases no action was taken to create an "acting President."

"In both cases alike," Corwin writes, "the official powers and duties of the disabled President were left to be discharged in such manner and by such devices as his immediate family and personal entourage had a mind to contrive. The intent and purpose, it was they who determined the issue of disability and determined it contrary to apparent fact."

Wilson never fully recovered, but he remained technically in full command of the presidency.

The determination, according to this theory, would be made by the Supreme Court, the President's own cabinet, or both houses of Congress. In any case, the decision would be based on the evidence of the President's condition.

Gift Shop ROBBED OF $165

Theft of $165 from the cash register of the Colony Gift Shop, 615 North Grand boulevard, was reported to police today by George Droege, owner.

John Kiljan, acting agent in charge of the Secret Service office here, said the nickel youth had a "pretty fair face and the face and back of Thomas Jefferson nickel were used to make the impressions on the counterfeit."

The youth and a companion were arrested on complaint of persons attending a lawn party in the 4500 block of Carrie avenue. They told police the youths exploded Fourth of July bombs after being asked to leave the premises.

COUNTERFEITING CHARGE AGAINST 15-YEAR-OLD BOY

A 15-year-old boy who admitted making counterfeit nickels with a lead soldier molding set was charged with counterfeiting in a warrant issued today by United States Commissioner Edwin J. Bean. He was released on a bond signed by his parents.

The boy, who attends a trade school, turned over two copper molds, a ladle and several pounds of lead to police, who found a lead nickel in his pocket after arresting him Saturday night for throwing firecrackers into a neighborhood lawn party. He said he made about 30 nickels last year. He had tried some of the counterfeits in vending machines, but they did not work, he said.

John Kiljan, acting agent in charge of the Secret Service office here, said the nickel youth had a "pretty fair face and the face and back of Thomas Jefferson nickel were used to make the impressions on the counterfeit."

The youth and a companion were arrested on complaint of persons attending a lawn party in the 4500 block of Carrie avenue. They told police the youths exploded Fourth of July bombs after being asked to leave the premises.

The third theft took place about three weeks ago, in a store at 1427 Monroe. The girl again dropped silver and, pretending to be searching for it, took $30 from a box beneath the counter, police were told.

Mrs. Sanders was booked suspected of counterfeiting to the delinquency of a minor. Officers said no action was contemplated regarding the girl or her father, who was questioned and released.

GIRL STOLE $450 FROM STORE, MOTHER SAYS

11-Year-Old, Told to 'Get Some Money' for Family, Looted Two Other Places.

A woman admitted to police today that her 11-year-old daughter stole $450 from one confectionery and smaller amounts from two others, after she told the child to "go out and get some money" for the family.

Mrs. Earl Sanders, 1900 block of Palm street, told officers she gave the girl no instructions as to how to get money. The child, acting on her own, stole a purse from a side room in one place, and in two others slipped behind counters to steal from cash boxes, police said.

After the thefts, which took place in recent weeks, the daughter brought the money home, Mrs. Sanders said. Her husband, who was unemployed until recently and there are five other children, ranging in age from 19 months to 15 years, in the family, she said.

Suspicions Reported.

Proprietors of the stores, recalling that the girl, Bonetta Sanders, had been in the vicinity when the thefts took place, reported their suspicions to police. The girl, when questioned, denied taking the money, but admitted stealing it after her mother was interviewed and told officers what had happened.

In the $450 theft, on Sept. 3 at a store at 3440 Blair avenue, the girl deliberately dropped a quarter so that it rolled behind the counter, Mrs. Sanders said. Then, when the proprietor was busy elsewhere, she took the money from a cigar box under the counter.

On a previous occasion, Aug. 19, the girl entered a store at 1327 Monroe street, and, when clerks were occupied with customers, slipped into a side room and took $80 from a purse there, her mother said.

The third theft took place about three weeks ago, in a store at 1427 Monroe. The girl again dropped silver and, pretending to be searching for it, took $30 from a box beneath the counter, police were told.

Mrs. Sanders was booked suspected of counterfeiting to the delinquency of a minor. Officers said no action was contemplated regarding the girl or her father, who was questioned and released.

BENSON TO BE QUESTIONED ON LADEJINSKY CASE

He Is Called at His Own Suggestion After Senators Question Two Aids.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson suggested today that a Senate subcommittee looking into the Wolf LaDjinsky case ought to direct its questions to him. The group immediately announced it would like to have Benson testify tomorrow. In a letter to Chairman Johnston (Dem.), South Carolina of the Senate subcommittee investigating the Government's employe security program, Benson said he had "full responsibility" for the Agriculture department's decision—reversed—to declare LaDjinsky a security risk.

Benson added:

"I feel . . . that testimony relating to the decisions of the department in this case should be given by me."

Johnston read Benson's letter at the opening of a session to which two Benson aids had been called as witnesses. He said Benson would be asked to testify tomorrow at 9:30 a.m.

LaDjinsky, a Russian-born land reform expert, received security clearance from the State Department and was employed for several years as an agricultural attaché in Japan. When his job was placed under the Agriculture Department he was fired last December as a security risk.

Hired by Stassen. The case attracted wide attention in newspapers. In the upshot, the Foreign Operations Administration, then headed by Harold Stassen, reviewed LaDjinsky's record, cleared him and assigned him to a post overseas. Benson later ordered LaDjinsky's designation as a security risk stricken from Agriculture Department records.

In opening the hearing, Johnston said security officials in some Government agencies were "downright incompetent, unqualified and politically biased," but that others were able public officials.

Johnston also read part of a letter he said he had received from a scientist working for an aircraft company who said he had "invented a new type of bombing system."

"I am the sole author of a long technical report describing it. The system and the report have to be classified secret."

"I, not having secret clearance will not be able to contribute further development of my own system; I will not even be able to read the report which I myself wrote."

Johnston described this as "the apex of executive bungling." He did not identify the scientist.

McLeod Questioned. Getting down to the LaDjinsky case, Johnston called R. W. Scott McLeod, the State Department's security boss, to the witness chair.

McLeod told the Senators he must "respectfully decline" to give them files on the State Department's investigation of LaDjinsky.

He did say, however, that

CAMBODIA EX-KING SAID TO AGREE TO TAKE PREMIERSHIP

PARIS, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bowing to the wishes of his father, former King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia today agreed to take the premiership for three months while the national legislature studies a possible successor, the French news agency reported.

Sihanouk turned the throne over to his father several months ago when he resigned to organize his own party. The party, the Popular Socialist Rally, swept recent elections and captured all seats in the new National Assembly and Constituent Congress.

The popular ex-king declined the offer of the premiership on a long-term basis.

state's files on LaDjinsky were given to the Agriculture Department before the farm expert returned over.

In response to other questions, McLeod said that as far as he knows there is no one in the Administration who has "exercised over-all supervision" of the security program.

Johnston commented that he took this to mean that each of the Government's 69 agencies is running its own security program.

McLeod said he knows of no single State Department employee who was ousted or who resigned for security reasons who has later been prosecuted by the Federal Government.

He testified since 1939 probably 200 to 300 "internal security" cases have been referred by the State Department to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for investigation.

Four Dismissals.

McLeod said four State Department employees had been actually fired after a full determination and review of their cases. He said many employees had resigned after being informed their files contained derogatory information.

He refused to reveal the names of the four who were fired.

The United Press reported that Assistant Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton told Johnston in a letter that the State Department used a lie detector in security checks. Morton said the department employees submit to the examination of their "own free will."

NEVADANS' INCOMES SHOW BIGGEST JUMP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Nevadans had the biggest percentage increase in their incomes last year and enjoyed the highest income per man, woman and child of any state in the nation.

Mississippi stood at the bottom of the states in per capita income in 1954, and its over-all income declined although most states showed a rise in total personal income.

For the nation, the income total rose about 1 per cent. But there was a slight drop on a per person basis because the population growth outstripped the increase in the total number of dollars which went to individuals during the year.

The per capita personal incomes for every man, woman and child for the various states for 1929 and 1954, respectively, as well as the percentage of the national average for 1954 include: Missouri, $628, $1747 and 99 per cent; Illinois, $957, $2155 and 122.

These figures came yesterday from the Commerce Department's annual study of personal income by states and by the seven major regions of the nation.

This year the study was revised, and the department made corrections in its records back to 1929 in line with revised definitions of what should be included in personal income.

The eight states comprising the central region showed the highest total dollar income, while the nine states of the northwest showed the smallest total personal income.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Mon., Sept. 26, 1955 5A

Nevada rode high in the nation in 1954 with an income of $2414 for each man, woman and child in the state, compared with the national average of $1770.

the event of complications.

The physician pointed out that Mr. Eisenhower will be 65 on Oct. 14 and that his attack of coronary thrombosis came about 15 years later than such attacks usually afflict the American male.

Not Altitude or Golf.

(The United Press said Dr. White scoffed at the idea that "mile-high" Denver altitude or the President's rigorous golf playing had anything to do with the attack.

(Dr. White, in terms often high technical, tried hard to give reporters a clear picture of what happened to the President. He explained that a small clot or thrombosis formed in an artery leading to the heart and caused damage to one area of heart muscle. He said thrombosis occurs when the clot tries to move through an artery wall that has gradually been narrowed by age or some other factor.

(He said it often is impossible to detect this narrowing of the artery walls until a clot forms and is unable to pass through. The loss of oxygen to the affected area of the heart damages muscle tissue. In an average case such as the President's he said, recovery consists of the dead muscle tissue being carried away and scar tissue forming. For this to be complete, he said, total rest is necessary. The damaged muscle is known technically as a myocardial infarction.)

President's Morale Good.

He emphasized that the President had a heart ailment of a kind that was not diagnosable. He said Mr. Eisenhower was "very carefully examined" as late as Aug. 1 by Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, Walter Reed Army Hospital heart specialist, that he read the electrocardiograph tracings and they showed "no sign whatever" of the disease. He said the President's morale is good and that he is "a wonderful patient."

He said the President had "a pretty bad pain" on Saturday morning and he was given morphine. He said he is being given medicine now to keep the blood from clotting in the heart itself. The President was given a little sedative last night, but has not had any need for digitalis.

In the treatment, he said, the "first month of rest is often best spent in the hospital" but he saw no reason why the President couldn't take it easy on his farm in about three weeks.

Dr. White was asked if other heart patients who recovered and resumed their normal activities ever went back to any job as burdensome as the presidency.

He said he supposed the President's job "is one of the hardest jobs in the world."

He avoided a direct reply on whether he would "recommend" such a course for the President, saying he had no convictions on that one way or the other.

Condition "Stable."

A bulletin at 7 a.m. (8 a.m. St. Louis time) announced that the President had spent "a comfortable night" and that his condition "remains stable." The statement was signed by Dr. Snyder and Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of heart services at Fitzsimons.

Prayerful wishes for the President's speedy recovery poured in from all over the globe.

At Fitzsimmons, where Mr. Eisenhower was taken Saturday afternoon, there was no thought of the tremendous political impact of the heart seizure which stunned the nation and people all around the globe.

That concern—and it is huge—was left to Republican party leaders who until the President was stricken had almost unanimously refused to entertain the idea that he might not be available for a second term.

His illness seemed to have raised an overriding likelihood that Mr. Eisenhower would decide against seeking re-election. He said himself last Aug. 4 the state of his health would be an important factor in his decision.

Just a couple of weeks ago he told Republican chairman from the 48 states to dismiss from their minds the idea of the indispensable man—and not to "pin your flag . . . tightly to one mast . . ."

Because, Mr. Eisenhower added, "humans are frail and they are mortal."

Legal Opinion Sought.

Although cautiously favorable reports came from the hospital here, Mr. Eisenhower's aids dealt with the question of whether Presidential authority could be delegated to other federal officials in the event of an emergency. There is no question that some authority can be, but the White House asked the Department of Justice for a formal legal opinion as to how wide the field may be.

In Washington, the Justice Department said it would be late this week before a decision is made, and when it is it will be sent directly to the White House at Denver for whatever decision is made there on public announcement of the opinion.

A bulletin issued by physicians at 9:10 o'clock last night said:

"The President is resting very comfortably. There is no change in his condition."

No change meant his condition still was "satisfactory" and that there had been no complications, as a mid-afternoon bulletin had put it.

It was in that afternoon bulletin that the doctors characterized the heart attack Mr. Eisenhower suffered early Saturday as "moderate." It had been first described as a "mild coronary thrombosis," a clotting of blood in a branch of the arteries which supply blood to the heart muscles.

The designation "mild" was used only once—in the Saturday afternoon announcement that the President had been stricken. The switch to "moderate" came after he had been examined by two leading heart specialists who flew here from the East.

One of them, Dr. White of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, defined "moderate" as "neither mild nor serious" but something in between those two medical yardsticks.

In addition to Dr. White, the afternoon bulletin had signed by Dr. Snyder, Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, who rushed here from the Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and Col. Pollack.

Mr. Eisenhower's illness, first announced as a "digestive upset" by Dr. Snyder, brought his son John, an Army major, from Washington yesterday.

The Chief Executive's wife stayed Saturday night from the Denver home of her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, to Fitzsimons Hospital, where she took a room across the hall from the President's. She has stayed on there since. John remained at the hospital last night, too.

In Oxygen Tent.

Mrs. Eisenhower visited with her husband twice yesterday. John had one brief chat with his father, who has been in an oxygen tent most of the time since he was hospitalized. Physicians said the tent is standard procedure in coronary cases, because it enables patients to get complete rest.

Each medical bulletin on Mr. Eisenhower's condition was being telephoned to Vice President Richard M. Nixon in Washington before being made public. And a White House aid gave reports by telephone to each of the President's four brothers.

Nixon had been scheduled to come to Denver today to preside at a conference Mr. Eisenhower had called for tomorrow and Wednesday on how to build the physical fitness of America's youth. Mr. Eisenhower's illness brought cancellation of the conference, and Nixon decided to remain in Washington.

Until yesterday noon the President's only nourishment had been fruit juices. Then he asked for and got a bowl of oatmeal—and ate it all.

Press Secretary Hagerty, who cut his vacation short and flew to Denver when the President was stricken, reported that Mr. Eisenhower had slept a good deal in the hospital. Hagerty so far has declined to provide any information about any medication Mr. Eisenhower may be getting.

The attack hit the President about 2 a.m. Saturday. He apparently awoke Mrs. Eisenhower, who called Dr. Snyder to the Doud residence.

27 Holes of Golf.

The day before he was stricken, Mr. Eisenhower played 27 holes of golf after returning from a four-day holiday at a Rocky Mountain fishing camp. He looked the picture of health and was in excellent spirits.

Ralph (Rip) Arnold, pro at Denver's Cherry Hills Country Club, said Mr. Eisenhower was "in wonderful shape when he went to the club (Friday), and he was in wonderful shape when he left.

"He shot an 84 on the first 18 holes, 12 over par. That's not his best round, but it's about average for him."

Arnold said the President rode almost 90 per cent of the time in an electric caddy cart.

Arnold said the President had complained of a "heart burn."

Cardiograph Made.

The White House said Dr. Snyder detected the first symptoms of a heart attack about 45 minutes after he arrived at the residence. He later called in Fitzsimons Hospital specialists, who made a cardiograph tracing showing performance of the heart. That confirmed that the President had suffered a seizure.

Dr. Snyder decided to hospitalize the President. The first announcement by the White House gave the impression that Mr. Eisenhower walked unaided to his car for the seven-mile drive to the hospital.

Hagerty said later, however, that the President was "supported and assisted to the car." He added the doctors decided that was better than "putting him on a litter or stretcher" and having to carry him down an incline.

bassas after the revolution. Numerous other former officials were killed in jail.

Seeking evidence of fraud, corruption, and illicit funds, the new Government sealed safety deposit boxes and limited withdrawals from checking and savings accounts. An army source said Carlos Aloe, one of Peron's closest business associates, and his brother Valentin had been seized in northern Argentina with satchels filled with 16,000,000 pesos—more than $1,000,000. The army source said the Aloes had been headed for Paraguay.

His illness seemed to have raised an overriding likelihood that Mr. Eisenhower would decide against seeking re-election.

He said himself last Aug. 4 the state of his health would be an important factor in his decision.

Brief fighting also was reported from the sugar capital of Tucuman, in north central Argentina. Thirty persons were arrested there.

Reports 400 Killed in Shelling in Buenos Aires Last Week.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (UPI)—Matt Murphy Jr., son of the Irish minister to Argentina, reported yesterday that an estimated 400 to 500 persons were killed in the shelling last week of the Buenos Aires headquarters of the National Alliance, supporters of Juan Peron.

The description of the robbery as given by witnesses varied considerably, although it was agreed he was wearing sunglasses of the type used by aviators, and was about 6 feet tall. He had on either a brown jacket or blue suit coat, with green khaki trousers. His age was given as 33 to 38, and his weight from 160 to 180 pounds. He wore a brown hat.

Car Found Abandoned.

The robber, in making his getaway, drove east on Pasadena toward Northwoods. His car was found abandoned at Salome and Irving avenues, Pine Lawn, within a block of the St. Louis city limits.

The automobile had been reported stolen last night from in front of 4050 Russell boulevard.

St. Louis police were called to Goodfellow and Lillian avenue after the holdup to investigate a report that a man of the robber's description had bought to stand back." The order was obeyed. Then he ran toward the rear of the drug store.

Leon Bengoa, and members of the First Army Command reached a peace agreement with Rosario General Confederation of Labor leaders. Workers were ordered to return to work and the army guaranteed their safety. All workers arrested during the disorders were to be released immediately.

"I ran to within 10 feet of the robber's machine, and fired at him as he got in. He ducked down, and the bullet hit the door. I did not fire again for fear of hitting someone in the neighborhood, and the robber drove away."

The robber worked so unobtrusively that a woman employee walked up to Alsmeyer and asked him a question while he was with the robber. She left after getting an answer, unaware there was anything amiss.

MITCHELL URGES INDUSTRY TO HIRE OLDER WORKERS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 26 (AP) — Unless industry hires older workers and keeps them working past arbitrary retirement age, "much of our potential manpower productivity will go down the drain," Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said last night on a television program.

He said older workers are "a good investment for industry and the growing tendency to shunt them aside in favor of younger people could eventually be disastrous..."

Mitchell also referred to growing technological advancements in industry. He said only 9,000,000 of the nation's 68,000,000 workers are in the skilled category, adding: "The advent of automation means the average worker will require more skills if the work of science is to have full fruition."

ADM. RAEDER RELEASED FROM SPANDAU PRISON

Former Commander of Hitler's Fleet Freed Because of Age, Health.

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (AP) — Erich Raeder, grand admiral of Hitler's navy, was released from Spandau prison today.

Serving a life sentence for war crimes, the 79-year-old former fleet commander was freed because of his age and feeble health, Allied sources said. The Russians and the Western Allies agreed on the clemency.

Raeder was the second of seven top Nazi war criminals imprisoned in Spandau to be freed. Last November Constantin von Neurath, former foreign minister and Nazi "protector" of Czechoslovakia, was turned loose because of age and poor health. Now 82, he is living in retirement in West Germany.

A chauffeur drove Mrs. Raeder behind the prison's gloomy walls in midmorning and 10 minutes later drove her out again, her husband at her side. She covered her face with a handbag when she noticed photographers.

Driven to Hospital.

The couple was driven to a German hospital in the British sector of Berlin. Wearing a rumpled black suit, Raeder looked tired but happy as he stepped from the car.

Asked by a reporter how he felt, he replied: "Very well."

Mrs. Raeder said her husband would stay at the hospital about four weeks.

An official announcement issued 20 minutes after Raeder's release said:

"The governments of France, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom and the United States of America have decided to release Erich Raeder from Spandau prison on Sept. 26 on account of his advanced age and the state of his health."

The Russians arrested both Raeder and his wife in 1945. He was convicted at Nuernberg Oct. 1, 1946, and sent to Spandau. She was taken to Russia for unspecified reasons and held there until July 1949.

Built Up German Navy.

Raeder was credited with building up the German navy after Kaiser Wilhelm's imperial fleet was scuttled at Scapa Flow in 1919. The Admiral laid special emphasis on submarines and on the pocket battleship, a light but powerful ship designed especially for raiding.

Those still confined in Spandau prison are former Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, who succeeded Raeder as commander in chief of the German navy in 1945, serving 10 years; Walter Funk, former Reichsbank president, life; former deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess, life; Baldur von Schirach, Hitler youth leader, 20 years; and Albert Speer, Hitler's munitions minister, 20 years.

The West German government and veterans' organizations have been pressing the four powers for release both of Raeder and Doenitz. The latter, now 64, is also reported in poor health.

The Allies last May turned down a request from the Bonn government for Doenitz's release.

Spandau prison, located in a West Berlin suburb, is an old fortress-like building designed to house more than 600 prisoners. Since 1946, however, it has held only the top Nazis.

The prison is under four-power control, with the Russians, British, Americans and French rotating the guard duty monthly. No changes in sentences or conditions of imprisonment can be made without the agreement of all four powers.

CRIME RATE RISE HERE IS SAID TO JUSTIFY INQUIRY

Mrs. Walsh Cites Contrasting Drop Nationally — House Police Probe Begins Next Week.

The rise in St. Louis' crime rate during the first six months of this year as compared with a decline nationally in the same period, points up the need for investigation of the police department, Representative Jennifer S. Walsh told the Post-Dispatch today.

Mrs. Walsh, of St. Louis, chairman of a special committee of the Missouri House of Representatives that will start an investigation next week of crime conditions and police operations here, called attention to the national decline in major crimes, reported yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The over-all decrease for the first half of 1955, the FBI said, was seven-tenths of 1 per cent. In the nation's cities, there was a 1.4 per cent drop. For the same period, St. Louis reported a 14.3 per cent increase.

"I think these figures justify the stand we took last week," said Mrs. Walsh, a Democrat.

She referred to the decision by her seven-member group to proceed with its inquiry even though the Legislature did not appropriate funds for the committee and the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners questioned the group's authority to conduct the investigation.

Methods to Be Checked.

Besides checking conditions here, Mrs. Walsh said, the committee will seek — within the limitations of its lack of funds — to find out what methods were used elsewhere in reducing the number of crimes.

Commenting on the FBI report, Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell said that the sharp rise in St. Louis occurred in crimes against property. He pointed out that there was a 4.6 drop in offenses against persons. This category includes murder, criminal attack and robbery.

To combat the crime increase he said the department is making every effort to fill the 155 vacancies in its authorized strength of 2010. O'Connell said there already were more than 100 applicants for the probationary patrolman class which will start training at the Police Academy early next month.

As soon as the new group begins receiving instruction, the chief said, recruiting of another class will be started.

LIGHTS FURNACE TO FIGHT CHILL, BUILDING IGNITED

An apartment building at 4024 Garfield avenue was damaged by a fire which started yesterday when Joseph Jackson burned papers in the furnace to take the chill out of his apartment, firemen reported.

Flames escaped from a defective flue and set fire to the two-story brick building. Three other apartments in the building were damaged.

Two alarms were sounded, bringing 12 pieces of fire equipment to the scene. Damage was estimated at $1700 by Deputy Fire Chief Robert Olsen.

HUDDERSFIELD, England, Sept. 26 (UPI)—Police said today no action was planned against three boys who accidentally set a fire which destroyed four homes.

The boys lit a fire in a tin can yesterday and accidentally dropped it on a coal tar dump. Flames roared up 100 feet and spread to nearby homes. Some 100 persons were evacuated from the area.

3 MEN DEAD, 2 RESCUED IN PACIFIC CRASH

HONOLULU, Sept. 26 (AP)—

Two survivors of a mid-Pacific plane crash were en route to Honolulu today aboard the freighter that found them after 44 hours in the sea.

Three others were dead from the crash of a Flying Tiger DC-4 cargo plane about 900 miles west of here.

A message from the freighter Steel Advocate identified the survivors as: Chief Pilot Tony Machado, 40 years old, Hollywood, Calif., and Co-Pilot Robert C. Hightower, 22, Vallejo, Calif.

The dead were identified by the airline as: Warren F. Gin, Los Angeles, a co-pilot, and Navigators Richard C. Olsen, Van Nuys, Calif., and Dominic Ventresca, Sepulveda, Calif.

The two survivors were reported suffering from shark bites, broken bones and shock.

The over-all decrease for the first half of 1955, the FBI said, was seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

In the nation's cities, there was a 1.4 per cent drop. For the same period, St. Louis reported a 14.3 per cent increase.

"I think these figures justify the stand we took last week," said Mrs. Walsh, a Democrat.

She referred to the decision by her seven-member group to proceed with its inquiry even though the Legislature did not appropriate funds for the committee and the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners questioned the group's authority to conduct the investigation.

Methods to Be Checked.

Besides checking conditions here, Mrs. Walsh said, the committee will seek — within the limitations of its lack of funds — to find out what methods were used elsewhere in reducing the number of crimes.

Commenting on the FBI report, Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell said that the sharp rise in St. Louis occurred in crimes against property. He pointed out that there was a 4.6 drop in offenses against persons. This category includes murder, criminal attack and robbery.

To combat the crime increase he said the department is making every effort to fill the 155 vacancies in its authorized strength of 2010. O'Connell said there already were more than 100 applicants for the probationary patrolman class which will start training at the Police Academy early next month.

As soon as the new group begins receiving instruction, the chief said, recruiting of another class will be started.

but the rescue vessel said their condition was not critical.

The survivors said Ventresca never got free of the plane when it hit the water Friday night. Olsen and Gin died in their life jackets. Their bodies slipped from the jackets as the lifeboat from the Steel Advocate reached the scene.

The plane was ditched when three of its four engines failed. It was carrying military cargo from Honolulu to Japan via Wake when it radioed a distress call.

Six ships and 36 military and civilian planes eventually joined in the search.

Hope was fading when Lt. Comdr. J. M. Lampert of Toledo, Ohio, piloted a Coast Guard plane, sighted the survivors yesterday afternoon. He directed the Steel Advocate to the scene.

U.S. COUNTERS SOVIET OFFER OF ARMS FOR EGYPT

Proposal Made on Theory Sale by Russia Would Weaken
American Security.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—The United States is trying to counter with its own offer a Russian bid to sell arms to Egypt. Such a sale of American weapons would almost surely bring a hot protest from Israel.

The American offer, it was learned yesterday, was made on the theory that United States security would be weakened if Russia became an arms supplier to Middle Eastern countries.

Egypt was described as very much interested in the American offer but was reported seeking United States financial aid to buy the military equipment.

Threat to Israel.

Israel regards any attempt to bolster the armed forces of the Arab countries as a threat to its own security. However, Israel's forces are known to be better equipped than almost all the Arab countries combined.

American officials have learned that Russia in a secret proposal offered Egypt items including tanks, artillery, jet fighters, naval vessels and infantry supplies.

It was understood the Soviets are willing to barter arms for Egyptian cotton. A similar barter arrangement with the United States was considered unlikely because United States warehouses are stocked with huge stores of surplus cotton.

An Egyptian official confirmed reports of the Soviet weapons offer three weeks ago, saying Egypt had no alternative but to accept Russian arms if they were unavailable from the West.

Denial Made.

A roundabout Russian denial was made public last Wednesday by the Israeli Foreign Ministry, which said the Israeli Ambassador to Moscow had been told reports of proffered arms aid to Arab states are "devoid of foundation and are nothing but fantasies."

Officials emphasized that any weapons supplied Egypt by the United States would be for strictly defensive purposes. However, to meet the Russian offer, they presumably would include such heavy equipment as tanks and artillery.

Israel has succeeded in buying only very limited quantities of American weapons, some machine guns and spare parts.

The United States has made no move to meet Israel's appeal for weapons under the foreign aid program, or to meet Israel's request for a defense treaty with this country.

52 PICKETS JAILED ON RIOT CHARGES AS PLANT REOPENS

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 26 (AP)—Fifty-two pickets were jailed on "riot and riot" charges in a shouting demonstration at Avco Manufacturing Corp. reopened its Crosley refrigerator plant today. Judge George Reller set bail at $500 for each and scheduled arraignment for tomorrow.

Management said 350 of some 600 non-strikers, mostly newly hired, got into the plant, along with almost 500 office and salaried workers who had passed through the picket line until new disorders started last Thursday.

The AFL Electrical Workers struck the plant last June 23 in a contract dispute.

BOY, 4, WANDERS AWAY, FOUND 2½ MILES FROM HOME

Claude E. Baugh, 4 years old, was returned to his home in East St. Louis yesterday after he apparently wandered away for about 3½ hours. Police reported. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Baugh, 468 North Thirty-first street.

The child was found by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Barbeau, 6955 Ames drive, St. Clair county, about 2½ miles from his home. The Barbeaus noticed Claude wandering about in their neighborhood and took him in because his clothing had become wet. They notified the sheriff's office.

Baugh said the boy had been playing in the backyard of their home early in the afternoon before he disappeared. Baugh, relatives and neighbors scoured the area in automobiles and neighborhood children, on bicycles and foot, joined the search. Sheriff's deputies returned Claude home at 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

YUGOSLAV URGES POWERS TO HALT ARMAMENT RACE

Foreign Secretary Tells U.N. Cold War Has Thawed — Asks for New Approach.

BY ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 26—Koca Popovic, foreign secretary of Yugoslavia, today declared the "cold war" has thawed, and urged the world powers agree not to increase their spending for armaments pending an agreement on arms reduction.

He told the United Nations Assembly that "a new pattern of international conduct is beginning to emerge" requiring "neutrality from strength" for "negotiation from equality."

"This would, in fact," he said, "create conditions in which equality would no longer rest on force."

It is encouraging to note that the principles of co-existence, which only recently were viewed with doubt and even suspicion in some quarters, have not only gained a very wide measure of support," Popovic said, "but are also finding a steadily increasing degree of application."

It is the United Nations which has, in a very real sense, helped make the world safe for coexistence," Popovic said.

Atmosphere Better.

He asserted that the international atmosphere now is better than at any time during the 10-year existence of the U.N. This is due substantially, he said, to the Austrian peace settlement and the Bandung conference "which provides a practical example of the possibility of cooperation among states with fairly different outlooks."

The most powerful single contributing factor," he added, was the Geneva Big Four conference of heads of government, "where for the first time since the onset of the cold war, the leaders of the parties more directly involved in these tensions got together and discussed issues in a spirit of mutual comprehension and good will."

Another venture in international co-operation cited by the Yugoslav leader was the recent conference at Geneva on the peaceful uses of atomic energy, nations of both East and West participated "under the aegis of the U.N."

Popovic did not mention existing differences between Soviet and United States disarmament steps, but thought "the problem of disarmament is being transposed more and more to the field of practical achievement."

Praises Both Sides.

He lauded the contribution made by both East and West at the top level Geneva conference when President Eisenhower advanced his plan for mutual aerial inspection of Soviet and United States military establishments.

"We cannot help wondering whether it might not be possible to reach some form of agreement at least not to increase expenditures on armaments and armed forces," Popovic said.

"Is not the very fact that some countries have gone even further in this respect — that they have begun reducing their armed forces or their military budgets, evidence in itself that conditions have matured for such a stop as this?"

Popovic pointed out that the number of countries applying for U.N. membership is one-third the number of the 60-nation organization and that almost half the European countries are not represented.

"The obvious thing to do," he said, "would be to admit all the candidates whose international status is not actually in doubt."

Tension Reduced.

He attributed the recent improvement of Yugoslav relations with the Soviet Union and with other countries of eastern Europe as a "significant" contribution to a broader system of European co-operation, removing one of the sources of tension and replacing it with "an area of constructive co-operation based on principles of equality and mutual respect."

Following Popovic to the speaker's stand, Paul Martin of Canada told the Assembly that "significant progress" had been made in U.N. efforts to devise a program for world arms reduction and elimination of weapons of mass destruction.

"Confronted by the appalling specter of disaster," Martin said, "the world has sobered up in the nick of time."

The most "hopeful augury" for this session were attitudes expressed in the current general debate and in the U.N. Disarmament Commission subcommittee meetings where "there is evident the desire to state as straight-forwardly as possible positions sincerely held rather than to establish propaganda points or to score debating points," he added.

Canada feels assured that the big powers "are striving with determination and imagination to solve" the problem of disarmament, Martin said. Thus must devise a plan of such nature that no nation, at any stage of arms reduction, will have reason to fear attack. That objective, he said prompted the Eisenhower plan for exchange of military information.

"It is a gesture of faith and imagination typical of a great man and his country," Martin continued. "We were particularly happy, therefore, to hear Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's tribute to President Eisenhower and we assure him, as people who know, that his confidence in the sincerity of this American proposal is not misplaced."

Agreement in Sight.

Martin saw no insistence between the President's suggestion and basic principles of the Russian propositions of May 10 which also are under discussion on the subcommittee. It is clear, he added, that the Soviet Union recognizes the "inevitable connection between insecurity and threat of war and prospects of disarmament."

"After long and difficult negotiations," some degree of general agreement "seems to be in sight," Martin concluded.

No official mention of President Eisenhower's proposal was made at the opening of today's session, but correspondents received copies of a telegram sent yesterday to the President by Jose Maza, Assembly president. It said:

"On behalf of the delegations to the tenth session of the General Assembly of the United Nations, I wish to present to Your Excellency our deep regret for your illness and convey to you our best wishes for a prompt recovery."

Other delegates on the speakers' list include those from Chile, Greece, Iraq, Panama, Yemen and Bolivia.

Wisconsin Deer Damage MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Wisconsin paid more than $400,000 between 1932 and 1954 for damage done by deer to farm crops. Most of the damage was to oats, corn and apples.

RAIL FREIGHT RATE HEARING TO OPEN TODAY BEFORE ICC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)

The Interstate Commerce Commission begins today a hearing on a proposal to make permanent a temporary freight rate increase granted the nation's railroads in 1952. The 12 to 15 per cent boost, bringing the carriers an estimated one billion dollars a year in additional income, is scheduled to expire the end of this year.

The views of supporters and opponents already have been expressed in briefs filed with the commission in advance of the hearing. As a result, today's session and those to follow are confined to cross-examination of witnesses—22 for the railroads supporting the proposal, and five for the opponents, representing the National Coal Association, the Property Owners Committee, the Southern Pine Association and Alexander Wood Products, Inc.

FIVE MORE U.S. CIVILIANS FREED BY RED CHINESE

14 Now Have Been Released Out of 41 Promised — One in Serious Condition.

HONG KONG, Sept. 26 (AP)

Five American civilians arrived in Hong Kong today after detention in Red China. Of the 41 whose release the Chinese Communists have promised, 14 have now reached freedom.

The five, who arrived from Shanghai aboard two British ships, were:

Dilmus T. Kanady, 36 years old, of Houston, Tex.; Robert Howard Parker, 83, a native of Philadelphia, Pa.; Emma Angelina Barry, 13-year-old daughter of an American father and a white Russian mother; Mrs. Marcella Munsterman Huizer of Wolcott, Ind., and Miss Eva Stella Dugay, 62, a Carmelite nun from Boston known as Sister Theresa.

Also returned from Red China to Hong Kong today was Roger Devriendt, a Belgian soldier who went over to the Reds five days after the Korean armistice was signed two years ago. He arrived by train from Canton.

One in Serious Condition.

Kanady, the Barry child and Parker reached Hong Kong aboard the freighter Hunan, Mrs. Huizer and Sister Theresa arrived on the Surat.

Kanady, who was imprisoned by the Communists four and a half years on charges of tax evasion and black market operations, was in serious physical condition. He was taken to a hospital. The Communists had operated on him for phlebitis, a circulatory ailment.

Kanady was the last of 10 imprisoned Americans the Communists promised at Geneva to free immediately. The other four were among a group of 12 Americans previously denied permission to leave. The Communists said at Geneva no charges had been filed against the 12 and they were free to leave.

The Chinese Reds also promised the "expeditious" release of 19 other American civilians held in China but none in this group has been returned.

Nun Is Seasick.

Sister Theresa was reported suffering from bronchitis, asthma, arthritis and seasickness. Robert Aylward, United States consul official who boarded the Surat at quarantine anchorage, said she had "been seasick since she left Shanghai and is in no condition to be interviewed."

A group of nuns and priests went to her cabin to welcome her. She was carried from the ship by Father James Smith of Norwalk, Conn.

Mrs. Huizer arrived with her Dutch husband, Pieter, former Shanghai branch manager for the Bank of America. They were well dressed and appeared in good physical shape.

By the United Press

Reds Invaded Convent. Although Sister Theresa was unable to talk to newspapermen, she said through a Catholic spokesman that the Communists "invaded" the convent every so often, the last time epSt. 8 when they arrested two sisters."

She said she last asked for an exit permit in January and was not put on trial. She said three French and one Canadian sister still in Shanghai are expected out soon.

"The Reds just came in anytime they wanted to try to get a confession," she said. This month, she said she had "quite an experience" when Communists armed with pistols moved into the convent compound and arrested several persons.

Mrs. Huizer, looking fresh after her trip, said she did not apply for an exit passport until two months ago as "I had been waiting until my husband could leave. My husband had to wait until the bank's affairs were cleared up."

Lived in Penthouse.

She said they had been living in a seven-room penthouse with four servants and that the Bank of America sent funds to Shanghai with permission of the United States Government, which "was very liberal in our case."

Mrs. Huizer added she was "very happy to be out of China and back with friends."

The bearded Parker, wearing a brown shirt and gray slacks, waved from the stern of the ship as it dropped anchor in Kowloon bay.

"I can hardly realize I am away from Shanghai," he said. "I feel so good."

Thirteen-year-old Emma Barry said she was "very glad to come out of China because I'm going to my own country, the United States. I don't like the Communists and I don't like Shanghai... When I left my friends and schoolmates couldn't see me off because the Chinese wouldn't let them."

She spoke fluent English and Chinese to reporters and Russian to her mother. Her mother disclosed Emma's father returned to the United States in 1947 and she had never heard from him.

Chronology of Events Following Eisenhower's Heart Attack

DENVER, Sept. 26 (AP) — Following is a chronological listing of the events concerned with President Eisenhower's illness: (The time notations are mountain standard, one hour earlier than St. Louis time).

2 a.m. Saturday—The White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, was summoned to the residence of the President's mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud.

8 a.m. — Dr. Snyder announced the President suffered a "digestive upset."

12 noon—Enlarging on his earlier statement, Dr. Snyder termed the President's condition "not serious," and described the ailment as an attack of "indigestion."

2:35 p.m.—Murray Snyder, assistant presidential press secretary, told the first of several press conferences over the rainy, chilled weekend that Mr. Eisenhower suffered a "mild coronary thrombosis." He said the President had been taken to Fitzsimons Army Hospital—only shortly before the press conference, it later was learned. 3:35 p.m.—At another press conference, Snyder said a heart specialist, Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, was being flown here from Walter Reed Army General Hospital in Washington. Accompanying him was James C. Hagerthy, the White House press secretary who had been on vacation. Snyder disclosed also the President's heart attack occurred at 2:45 a.m.

6:05 p.m.—The first of several advisory bulletins, this released by Dr. Snyder, said the President is resting well in the hospital and his condition is good.

7:20 p.m.—Mrs. Eisenhower arrived at the hospital from her mother's home. She remained in a room opposite that of the President overnight.

8:39 p.m.—Snyder informed reporters the heart attack was the first the President ever had.

10:23 p.m.—Snyder announced that Dr. Paul Dudley White, prominent Boston heart specialist, was to fly here to attend the President. He said the President had been in an oxygen tent since he was hospitalized.

11:30 p.m.—Col. Mattingly and Hagerthy arrived by plane. 12:30 a.m. Sunday—They arrived at Fitzsimons. Col. Mattingly and Drs. Snyder and Byron E. Pollock entered the room of the President, who awakened and talked briefly with them.

1:30 a.m.—The doctors said Mr. Eisenhower had "withstood the attack well and has been resting comfortably."

4:15 P.M.—Dr. White and a panel of physicians described the President's heart attack as "moderate" — somewhere between mild and serious—and said "his present condition is satisfactory." It also was disclosed the President requested and ate a bowl of oatmeal about noon—his first food other than fruit juice since entering the hospital.

6 P.M.—Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, arrived aboard the President's plane, Columbine III, from Fort Belvoir, Va.

Sunday evening—Mrs. Doud, the President's mother-in-law, made her first visit to the hospital but did not immediately see her son-in-law.

9:10 P.M.—A new medical bulletin said: "The President is resting comfortably. There is no change in his condition."

Mondays, 7 a.m.—"The President had a comfortable night," a bulletin said. "His condition remains stable. Dr. White will see him again this morning."

10:10 a.m.—Dr. White, after examining Mr. Eisenhower, said unless there are unforeseeable complications the President should be able to recover completely within two months. The physician even went so far as to say that if present satisfactory progress continues Mr. Eisenhower would be "physically able" to serve a second term should he desire to seek it.

CRIMES IN U.S. DROP FOR FIRST TIME SINCE 1948

FBI Reports Slight Decline in Six-Month Period — Still One Every 13.9 Seconds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (UPI)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation reported yesterday that major crimes in the United States declined during the first six months of this year, the first drop since 1948.

Despite the decline, a major crime was committed every 13.9 seconds of the six-month period. They totaled 1,128,350, sevenths of 1 per cent fewer than the 1,136,140 major crimes reported in the corresponding period of 1954.

The federal law enforcement agency said in its semi-annual bulletin that "the year 1955 may show a long overdue break in the upward crime trend of the past seven years."

The report was only slightly optimistic, however. It said that if the present crime rate continues, 1955 will be the fourth straight year in which more than 2,000,000 major crimes are committed.

34 Killings a Day.

During each day of the first six months of this year, the FBI said, 34 persons were killed, 255 were assaulted, 51 were raped and 607 cars were stolen. There also were 3714 larcenies, 167 robberies and 1405 burglaries every day.

The crime rate decrease from last year amounted to 1.4 per cent in the nation's cities, the report said, and just three-hundredths of one per cent in rural areas. But the FBI placed special significance in the rural decline because it "represents an abrupt halt in rising crime totals in rural areas over many years."

The biggest over-all decline for the six months was 15.1 per cent in robberies. Murders and non-negligent manslaughter decreased 3.8 per cent, burglaries 3.3 per cent, negligent manslaughter .3 per cent, and auto thefts .2 per cent.

Some Increases.

An increase of 6.3 per cent was noted in rape cases, 1.1 per cent in aggravated assault cases, and .9 per cent in larceny cases.

Other facts in the FBI crime report:

Every 4.2 minutes during the first six months of 1955 there was a crime of murder, manslaughter, rape or murderous assault.

There was one major crime committed for each 144 persons in the United States.

A total of 6240 persons were slain in the six months, while 55,410 persons were assaulted by rapists or potential killers. Robbers jeopardized the lives of more than 30,000 persons.

In 1954, 61 city policemen were killed in the line of duty.

Five out of every seven persons charged with a crime in 1954 were found guilty.

A total of 109,830 automobiles were reported stolen in the first half of 1955, compared with 110,060 in the corresponding period last year.

431 MORE QUIT OR ARE FIRED AS SECURITY RISKS

Report to Senate Group
Is for Two Months
Total Now Is 9310.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Government announced today that 9310 federal employees quit or were fired under the Administration's security program through last June 30. This was an increase of 431 since the last previous report March 31.

Philip Young, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, told a Senate Civil Service subcommittee that 182 of those leaving between March and June were fired as security risks.

As usual in Young's security program reports, there was no breakdown showing how many of these were ousted as subversives and how many were fired as alcoholics, sex perverts or for some other reason.

Young said there were 249 resignations by persons whose files contained "unfavorable" information indicating they might be security risks, either because of alleged subversion, because they had criminal records, because they were alcoholics or sex perverts or other reasons.

These resignations, young said, came before a final determination had been made in each case.

SENATE INQUIRY ON MERIT SYSTEM IN CIVIL SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (UP)—Chairman Olin D. Johnston (Dem.), South Carolina, announced today that the Senate Civil Service and Post Office Committee is starting an "intensive" investigation of the federal civil service merit system.

Johnston said the inquiry will cover, among other things, the roles of the White House and the Civil Service Commission in personnel management and how the relationship between the two affects the merit system.

He said it also will include "the controversial 'Willis' order" which emanated from the White House last year establishing a procedure for selecting Republicans to fill Government jobs."

The Senator apparently was referring to instructions to the Republican National Committee last fall signed by Charles F. Willis Jr., then a White House aid handling patronage, which brought the G.O.P. committee into the civil service recruitment picture.

Another phase of the Senate investigation, Johnston said, will embrace what he called "the dual role" of Philip Young as chairman of the Civil Service Commission and as personal adviser to the President.

DIVORCE TRIAL NEARS; WIFE STILL 18 LBS. TOO HEAVY

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (AP)—The weighty divorce case of Mrs. Lillian Korzen comes up before the court Tuesday and her attorney said yesterday she is still 18 pounds short of the diet goal needed to save her marriage.

Mrs. Korzen's husband, Michael, filed suit for divorce last May because he said she weighed too much. He charged cruelly.

But Korzen promised to take her back if she would slim down from 190 pounds to 127 by Sept. 27. Judge Cornelius Harrington approved the arrangement.

Mrs. Korzen's attorney, Edwin C. Podwell, said his client weighed in Saturday at 145 pounds after five months of dieting. He said she had been prohibited by a physician from further dieting.

Podwell said he planned to ask for a continuance. Korzen's attorney, Sol R. Friedman, said he would insist Mrs. Korzen show whether she had met the goal.

"I'll produce an accurate scale," Friedman said, "and I will ask her to get on it."

G.I. ACCUSED OF DESERTING, JOINING ANTI-U.S. GROUPS

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (UP)—The United States Army today charged a soldier with deserting to East Germany and affiliating with groups which advocate the violent overthrow of the United States Government.

The Army identified the soldier as Pvt. Tom R. Woods of Rogersville, Tenn. He will be tried by general court-martial at a date to be set.

Woods was absent from his unit in Berlin from March 1954 to July 1955 when the Soviets returned him to American authorities. Woods said he spent the entire 16 months in the Soviet zone.

PARTY IN KROGER STRIKE IS SET FOR THURSDAY

A conference in an effort to settle a strike of 28 maintenance men, which resulted in the closing of 52 Kroger Co. stores in St. Louis and St. Louis county 10 days ago, will be held Thursday.

The meeting was called by United States conciliators. Pickets were posted at the Kroger warehouse and bakery by the strikers' union, AFL Firemen & Oilers Local 6, halting deliveries to area stores. More than 3000 employees of the company are idle in the wage dispute.

HURRICANE HEADS FOR NICARAGUA AND HONDURAS

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26 (AP)—The Central American republics of Honduras and Nicaragua were warned today of the approach of hurricane Janet's 110-mile winds.

Extreme northeastern Nicaragua and the northeastern coast of Honduras appeared to be the target of the storm. Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster at Miami, said Janet apparently would continue its northwestward course across the Caribbean sea but will bear watching.

"It has slowed down from 16 to 9 miles an hour," said Dunn. "This slowing down frequently means a change of course, but we can find no steering winds to take her off her present course."

An 11 a.m. advisory placed the hurricane's center about 240 miles south-southwest of Kingston, Jamaica. This was 825 miles south-southeast of Miami.

The hurricane, tenth of the season, struck the British West Indies Thursday night. A United States Coast Guard pilot who made a landing yesterday at Grenada said today the death toll is believed to be between 125 and 200 on that island. He said there were believed to be about 25 dead on the neighboring island of Carriacou. Reports from Barbados have listed about 30 dead and 40,000 homeless.

STEEL UNION TO SEEK EXTRA WEEKEND PAY

CIO to Make Demand Next Year for Saturday and Sunday Work.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (UP)—The CIO United Steel Workers will demand premium pay for Saturday and Sunday work in the basic steel industry, USW President David J. McDonald said.

McDonald told the annual conference of USW district 31 yesterday that the demand, applying to 600,000 workers in the basic steel industry, will be made when contract negotiations begin next year.

"Basic steelworkers insist on being treated as other workers," McDonald said.

Union leaders said it was the first time that McDonald had revealed the premium pay demand.

McDonald also said the steel companies will have to offer a guaranteed annual wage plan similar to the program recently negotiated for 35,000 employees of the American Can Company and Continental Can Company.

CRESTWOOD SEEKS SAFETY FOR EMERGENCY VEHICLES

Special efforts to arrest motorists who do not yield the right-of-way to emergency vehicles were ordered today by Crestwood Chief of Police Al P. Seimel. He acted as a result of the fourth such incident in four months, in which Deputy Marshal Melvin C. Tinsley was injured early yesterday.

Tinsley, who lives at 661 Norton avenue, Kirkwood, was chasing a speeder at 70 miles an hour in the 9200 block of Highway 66, with his siren on and a red light flashing, when another automobile turned into the path of his machine from a trailer court.

The officer applied his brakes and his car spun around, the rear end striking the rear of the vehicle ahead, then went into a ditch. The driver, who said he was Floyd E. Cowell, of the 3700 block of St. Louis avenue, was charged with careless and reckless driving and destruction of city property.

That will be up to the committee," he told a reporter.

"I personally would favor making the information public. When you begin to try to conceal something from the public—and the press, which is the same thing—it only creates suspicion."

EVERY BUILDING ON IWO JIMA U.S. BASE DAMAGED BY WIND

TOKYO, Sept. 26 (UP)—A tropical typhoon damaged every building on the American military base of Iwo Jima and several members of the garrison suffered "minor injuries," the United States Far East Air Force said today.

The driver said he was Ronald G. Smith, 18, 7441 Church Lane, East St. Louis. Smith said Kane walked from behind his car to the path of his machine. He was going about 15 miles an hour because he was slowing for a red light at the intersection, and intended to make a right turn.

Chairman Omar Burleson (Dem.) of Texas, indicated, however, that the House Administration Committee—which passes on expense accounts of House members—may take the veil of secrecy off their foreign spending when it meets next year. He said, however, he could not promise.

The delegates were addressed by the association president, J. E. Smith, of Chase City, Va. and heard reports from other executives of the agency. Archer Nelson, REA Administrator, will deliver a speech tomorrow, the final day of the two-day session.

3 WOMEN HELD AS CAPTIVES BY BANK ROBBERS

Cashier, Mother, Sister
Guarded 11 Hours
Until Lock Opens —

CARMEL, Ind., Sept. 26 (UP)—Two robbers held three women, members of the same family, prisoners throughout the night and robbed a bank of $15,940 today.

The masked men waited 11 hours—first with three prisoners and part of the time with six—until the time vault at Union State Bank clicked open. Then they scooped up the money and fled.

The robbers went to the home of Miss Thyrza Peters, the cashier, at Whisterton, about 18 miles away, at 10 p.m. Sunday and herded her, her elderly mother and her sister into a bedroom.

At 4 a.m. they drove the women to the bank, forced Miss Peters to unlock the door, and shoved the three into the basement. As three other employees showed up for work, one by one, they were forced to join the three women in the basement.

Shortly before 9 a.m., when the bank opens, the time mechanism on the vault unlocked it, the robbers grabbed all the cash in sight, ran to the Peters car, and sped away.

They wore silk stockings over their heads to distort their features and make identification difficult.

Blockades Established.

State police were notified immediately and established roadblocks.

The car was found abandoned between Carmel, a town of 2500 population, and Indianapolis, which is less than 10 miles away. The men were believed to have switched to a yellow automobile with an "AJ" letter prefix.

The three women were not harmed, according to Dr. Andrew Connoy of Westfield, president of the bank.

Women Suffer Shock.

Connoy said the two men told the women when they forced their way into the Peters home that they were interested "only in the money in the bank." They did not terrorize the women, although Miss Peters, her mother, Mrs. Eunice Peters, and her sister, Miss Mary Evelyn Peters, suffered varying degrees of shock from the ordeal.

Could Not Stop Them.

He commented that he felt if public opinion should shift but a few per cent against us, the Hoover recommendations would sweep through the Congress like a spring breeze. We could not possibly stop them."

In 1953, he said, a bill based on the recommendations of the Hoover Commission "would result in the destruction of more than half of the rural electric systems in the United States and in the crippling of all the rest."

One bill would require the co-operatives to pay the administrative costs of REA, another would increase the interest rate on federal loans to cooperatives "out of reason," and a third would place REA under the Government Corporation Control Act "and subject us to a multitude of new laws and procedures," he said.

CONGRESS JUNKET EXPENSE LISTINGS LABELED SECRET

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (UP)—Congress has labeled as secret the expense accounts of members of Congress traveling abroad to attend the 1954 session of the United Nations.

The Senate Appropriations Committee has already started receiving expense accounts from individual Senators returning from the far corners of the world.

Staff aids said the committee has not made that kind of information public in the past and there is no sign that it will be in the future.

Chairman Omar Burleson (Dem.) of Texas, indicated, however, that the House Administration Committee—which passes on expense accounts of House members—may take the veil of secrecy off their foreign spending when it meets next year.

He said, however, he could not promise.

The delegates were addressed by the association president, J. E. Smith, of Chase City, Va. and heard reports from other executives of the agency. Archer Nelson, REA Administrator, will deliver a speech tomorrow, the final day of the two-day session.

Will Be Up to the Committee.

"I personally would favor making the information public. When you begin to try to conceal something from the public—and the press, which is the same thing—it only creates suspicion."

EAST ST. LOUIS MAN, HIT BY AUTO, DIES OF INJURIES

Joseph C. Kane, 994 North Thirty-eighth street, East St. Louis, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile Saturday night about 200 feet east of the intersection of Thirty-seventh street and St. Clair avenue on the outskirts of East St. Louis, Illinois State Police reported.

Kane, about 65 years old, suffered head injuries and a fractured left leg. He died at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, an hour after the accident.

The driver said he was Ronald G. Smith, 18, 7441 Church Lane, East St. Louis. Smith said Kane walked from behind his car to the path of his machine. He was going about 15 miles an hour because he was slowing for a red light at the intersection, and intended to make a right turn.

Chairman Omar Burleson (Dem.) of Texas, indicated, however, that the House Administration Committee—which passes on expense accounts of House members—may take the veil of secrecy off their foreign spending when it meets next year.

He said, however, he could not promise.

They have no option of stopping along the way.

The prize is smaller, too—a motor scooter worth about $440.

HURT BY AUTO WHEN HE GETS OUT OF CAR AFTER ACCIDENT

Bryan Morris, 58, coal miner of Galatia, Ill., suffered a fractured right leg yesterday when struck by an automobile at Fifteenth street and Bond avenue, East St. Louis. Morris had stopped his automobile there after it had been sideswiped by another car.

As he walked to the middle of the intersection to report the accident to Special Officer Elmer Evans, who was directing traffic, Morris was struck by another car.

Driver of the car which struck Morris said he was Willie Dorsey, Negro, living in the 1200 block of Kansas avenue, East St. Louis.

No Hands.

DULUTH, Minn. (UP)—Six automobilia were involved in a traffic pileup but there wasn't a single candidate for reckless driving charges—none of the cars had drivers.

A parked car rolled forward and nudged another, which rolled a block and a half and rammed a third car. The second impact caused a chain reaction which damaged three more cars.

CLOSE-UP.

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Eileen Whelan didn't have to board the submarine Tambor on the Detroit river to show her 11-year-old son an underwater craft.

No sooner did the two start for the submarine yesterday when their parked car began to roll, gained momentum and went into the river.

G.I. ACCUSED OF DESERTING, JOINING ANTI-U.S. GROUPS

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (UP)—The United States Army today charged a soldier with deserting to East Germany and affiliating with groups which advocate the violent overthrow of the United States Government.

The Army identified the soldier as Pvt. Tom R. Woods of Rogersville, Tenn. He will be tried by general court-martial at a date to be set.

Woods was absent from his unit in Berlin from March 1954 to July 1955 when the Soviets returned him to American authorities. Woods said he spent the entire 16 months in the Soviet zone.

Keeping Scholastic Standards Real Integration Crisis in South

Educators Alarmed Because There Still Is Wide Gap Between Competence of Negro and White Teachers.

By HOMER BIGART
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 26.—The outcry of southern demagogues and white supremacists against an integrated public school system has almost drowned out the reasoning voices of educators on this great explosive issue.

Stripped of emotion and prejudice, the idea of integration is still a bruising shock to southern white teachers and school administrators as well as to thoughtful white parents.

With these groups, the question is not: "Do you want your daughter to marry a Negro?" which is at the root of most hate-inspired pro-segregation arguments. (Sexual fear is heavily exploited by race baiters, who claim that any mixing of Negro and white children is bound to promote "mongrelization" and hasten the end of white civilization.)

Among the rational groups the main idea is this: Immediate and large-scale desegregation in areas having a big percentage of Negroes would cause grave harm to scholastic standards.

For there is still a wide gap between the average competence of Negro and white teachers, and there is still a wide gap between the scholastic achievement of Negro and white students.

Cultural Impoverishment.
The disparity is not set forth by educators as any excuse for permanent segregation. Nor is there evidence that the disparity is due to any innate racial qualities. It is simply the inevitable product of generations of desperate grinding poverty—and of cultural impoverishment—from which the Negro is only just emerging.

In the area of teaching competence, perhaps the most objective evaluations are those provided by the teacher examinations of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J.

The examinations are offered yearly. They are designed to measure only certain knowledges and abilities judged to be important for teachers and capable of evaluation. They are not meant to be used by school officials as sole criteria for evaluating teacher applicants but as a supplement to interviews, recommendations, college credentials and so forth.

Last year the Educational Testing Service examined 1429 seniors who were nearing completion of their teacher preparation in 37 colleges of the South. This sampling was divided into two racial groups. There were 912 white seniors tested at 26 colleges in seven states and 517 Negro seniors tested at 11 colleges in five states.

At Princeton, Arthur L. Benson, director of teacher examinations for the E.T.S., declined to identify the colleges. That was confidential, he said. All he could reveal was that the colleges were in the nine states of Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and West Virginia.

Results of Study.
The facts revealed by the study have astounded many school administrators. It was generally believed that the gap in teacher training had been practically closed. This belief was based mainly on the fact that in six southern states the average Negro teacher now exceeds the average white teacher in years of college training. The six states are Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Oklahoma and Texas.

Here are the facts revealed by the teacher examinations: The average Negro senior's performance was surpassed by 95 per cent of the white group in a nation-wide sampling based on data provided by nearly 2400 seniors in 24 institutions.

The average Southern white senior's score was only about 1 per cent lower than the national average.

In other words, about 5 per cent of the Negro seniors performed as well as the average white senior.

If the tests are valid, they point to one inescapable conclusion: The product of the Negro teachers colleges remains inferior.

If the tests are valid, Negro bachelor degrees from the 11 colleges are not worth much more than a high school diploma in New England.

Problem of Education.

So one of the big problems the South faces is how to improve Negro education at college level to the point where the Negro teacher candidate is acceptable not only to the community but to the children.

The tests, which probably will come under heavy fire from Negro groups, involve: (1) professional information (this test covers such topics as education as a social institution, child development, educational psychology, guidance and measurement in education and principles of instructional method); (2) English expression; (3) social studies, literature and fine arts; (4) science and mathematics, and (5) non-verbal reasoning (a test of ability to reason with abstract, non-verbal materials).

On the last leg of the 6700-mile journey through the South this correspondent stopped in Louisville and interviewed Omer Carmichael, superintendent of Louisville schools.

Carmichael believes that the problem of fitting Negro teachers into white faculties is perhaps the most difficult of all the headaches involved in integration. He knows no easy solution.

But Carmichael, who has preme Court decision of 1954, Carmichael asked every public school faculty to study integration. By January, 1800 teachers were facing up to the problem. Each principal turned in a report. Meanwhile parent-teacher associations and church groups were encouraged to discuss the issue.

There were even panel discussions in the schools with students of both races participating.

"You can't make a change of this magnitude without preparation," Carmichael said. He agreed that Louisville was considerably more tolerant on the race issue than cities of the deep South, and that the local press had been "a tremendous asset" by firmly opposing racial discrimination.

No Segregation On Buses.

Jim Crow segregation on the city buses ended years ago.

The University of Louisville desegregated five years ago.

For six years Negroes have been using the public library system. Five publicly-owned golf courses are open to Negroes. And Negroes this year could attend plays in the municipal amphitheater.

How long would the deep South need to achieve a similar climate of acceptance?

"Five years," said Carmichael. Other experts agreed that five years was the barest minimum.

There are good men in the South—even a few good governors like Orval E. Faubus, of Arkansas, and Leroy Collins, of Florida. Gov. Collins and his attorney general, Richard W. Ervin, are justifiably proud of the monumental brief submitted by Florida to the Supreme Court in 1954. The brief, which incorporated an intensive study by many of the state's leading educators, political scientists and psychologists, is believed to have considerably influenced the high court in its implementation decision of last spring.

Proposed Desegregation Steps.

The Florida brief said that the accomplishment of efficient desegregation "with a minimum or social disturbance" depended on these steps:

First, "a clear and unequivocal statement of policy by leaders with prestige and other authorities."

Second, "formal enforcement of the changed policy by authorities and persistence in the execution of this policy in the face of initial resistance."

Third, "a willingness to deal with violations, attempted violations and incitement to violations by a resort to the law and strong enforcement action."

Fourth, "a refusal of the authorities to resort to, engage in or tolerate subterfuges, gerrymandering of school districts or other devices for evading the principles and the fact of desegregation."

Fifth, "an appeal to the individuals concerned in terms of their religious principles of brotherhood and their acceptance of the American traditions of fair play and equal justice."

Florida's state school superintendent Thomas D. Bailey has urged each of the 67 counties to form bi-racial study committees to prepare for integration.

DRUMMOND

Nixon Better Prepared to Fill In for President Than Any Other Vice President in U.S. History

Eisenhower Has Made Running Mate a Full-Scale Participant in Forming and Carrying Out Policies and Has Kept Him Informed of Secrets.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.

RICHARD M. NIXON begins his unwelcome role as, in effect, "acting President" of the United States with a more intimate, inside back-stage knowledge of the policies of the White House than any Vice President in American history.

It can be stated with knowledge that President Eisenhower planned it that way.

His plan was that his Vice President should be as ready as possible for any emergency—including the kind which has now arisen.

To prepare for such an emergency Mr. Eisenhower took a step without precedent in presidential history: from the first meeting of the Cabinet he made Vice President Nixon a full-scale participant in formulating and executing major Administration policy and kept him intimately abreast of the inner secrets of the Chief Executive.

No Vice President has ever had anything approaching this training for the time when, even if temporarily, he might have to discharge presidential duties. Truman Had Tenuous Contact.

Former President Truman, in his memoirs, confirms—as most Washington correspondents knew at the time—that he had only the most tenuous, insubstantial contact with the White House while he was Vice President.

In areas of significant policy-making, he did not know anything that was going on inside the White House.

I recall Mr. Truman telling a few of us whom he had taken with him on the presidential yacht, the Williamsburg, on a Sunday afternoon a few months after he had assumed office, that for weeks on end he had to read at least 30,000 words of memoranda every night just to catch up with past Roosevelt actions which he knew nothing about—this in addition to the exacting daily burdens of office.

Eisenhower Still Available.

Nixon's new responsibilities will obviously not be comparable to those of the President, since Mr. Eisenhower will probably be available for frequent decision and consultation with all his aids, including the Vice President. But Nixon will be able to bring to handling of many large matters a continuity of inside knowledge exceeded only by the President himself.

One point should be made clear. There are some who tend to assume that, in giving his Vice President such a large role at the center of the White House, Mr. Eisenhower was deliberately grooming his Vice President to succeed him as the Republican nominee if he did not run for a second term.

I know of no evidence to support this view and I know no White House intimate to whom the President ever hinted this view.

Mr. Eisenhower was seeking

G.O.P. to Run on Eisenhower Platform in Any Case, Hall Says

Party Chairman Asserts President's Illness Will Not Interfere With Republican Political Plans.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (UP).

REPUBLICAN National Chairman Leonard Hall said today that the Republicans would run on the Eisenhower platform in 1956 even if the President bows out of the race.

Hall spoke at the Union League Club and was interviewed before his speech. He said the President's illness will not "interfere with any plans" the Republicans have made politically.

"So far as I am concerned," Hall said, "we are proceeding in the same way. There are no changes in strategy and no changes in organization."

Hall said when he visited the President in Denver two weeks ago, "I came away very much of the opinion that he would run again."

Asked if he thought the President's heart attack would "interfere in any way with his plans for re-election," Hall replied: "No."

Hall then refused to discuss the subject further, saying he thought it was "an area" into which he should not enter.

In his address before the Union League Club he said he endorsed Vice President Richard Nixon's statement that "the President has built up a great team that will carry on in his absence."

In his address Hall said, "This (Republican) party will be the majority party in the country in 1956."

He said the Republicans would put on a fight not only

TURKEY'S PRESIDENT ASKS IRAN TO JOIN DEFENSE PACT

TEHRAN, Sept. 28 (AP)—Turkey's President Celal Bayar said today he had asked Iran to join the Turkey-Iraq mutual defense pact and expected a reply "in the near future."

Participation of Iran in such a pact would close the Western-allied defense ring across the Soviet Union's middle eastern frontier. Pakistan, east of Iran, already is linked with Turkey in a pact.

Bayar, winding up a seven-day visit in Tehran, told reporters the Iranian government "had already demonstrat-

Argentine Labor Leader Says He Has Pledges Of Lonardi Not to Change La Prensa and C.G.T.

Word as to Seized Newspaper Is Blow to Free Press Hopes.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 26. THE new provisional government is making a strong bid for the support of Argentine workers as their ousted dictator, Juan Domingo Peron, began his trip up the Parana river today toward self-imposed exile in Paraguay.

This strategy of the new government was demonstrated unmistakably last night in a radio speech by Hector Hugo de Pietro, secretary general of the powerful General Confederation of Labor, through which Peron controlled the nation's labor movement. He reported on assurances he said Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi had given him in an interview earlier in the day.

Principal Commitments. Di Pietro said he had received were that the Government would not "modify the situation of the newspaper La Prensa" and had no intention of forcing a reorganization of the C.G.T.

Symbol of Tyranny. Obviously, Mr. Nixon's own political stature is related to the way he has taken advantage of the opportunities which Mr. Eisenhower put in his reach. If Mr. Eisenhower is not to be the Republican nominee next year, Nixon will have special occasions, inherent in his position, to demonstrate his qualifications.

Nixon Uses Opportunities.

Obviously, Mr. Nixon's own political stature is related to the way he has taken advantage of the opportunities which Mr. Eisenhower put in his reach.

If Mr. Eisenhower is not to be the Republican nominee next year, Nixon will have special occasions, inherent in his position, to demonstrate his qualifications.

Principal Commitments.

Di Pietro said he had received were that the Government would not "modify the situation of the newspaper La Prensa" and had no intention of forcing a reorganization of the C.G.T.

Symbol of Tyranny.

The announcement about La Prensa comes as a particular shock to Argentina's middle class and intellectuals, to many of whom the suppression of the former great independent newspaper had become the chief symbol of Peron's tyranny.

Peron had cloaked his seizure of La Prensa with legality after failing to reach it through the law of "disrespect" or through the Congressional Committee on Anti-Argentina Activities which maneuvered the closing of more than 60 newspapers. He cut down its newsprint supply drastically, arranged a strike by his captive news vendors union and finally had La Prensa's editor and principal owner, Alberto Gainza Paz, indicted for "crimes against the safety of the state" when he tried to continue publication despite the strike.

A special session of the Peronista-controlled Congress voted seizure of the paper in March 1951 and it remained published November 19, 1951, as an organ of the C.G.T.

Since Peron's overthrow last week, the paper has dropped its page of trade union news headed by a drawing of Peron's late wife. Eva, with the legend "alive or dead she will always be on the side of the workers."

Until last Friday it continued to date each issue from the start of its publication by the C.G.T. Friday's paper had the usual designation "fourth year, number 1373," but the additional phrase, "in the Peronista era," was missing.

Stolen Property?

Gainza Paz, who escaped arrest in 1951 by fleeing to Uruguay and has been living since then in New York, calls the newspaper "stolen property," and contends that it was not expropriated but instead that it was seized without any compensation.

He has said he hopes to return soon to Argentina to take back control of the paper.

The 86-year-old journal had a circulation of 460,000 on weekdays and 570,000 on Sundays as late as 1950. It is said to have published more foreign news than any other paper in the world.

Fiercely independent, it sometimes assailed "Yanqui imperialism" as bitterly as Peron. It praised some of his actions and attacked others. Most of its income came from a large personal classified advertising section, so it was immune to government pressure through a few big advertisers.

Statement on C.G.T.

Di Pietro's reference to the C.G.T. was the brief statement that "Gen. Lonardi has assured me that there is no intention to intervene in the C.G.T. and its component organizations."

Newspapers here had published reports earlier in the day that the new government would "intervene"—that is, the new government would take over its administration and put a former labor leader, Luis Gay, in charge of the C.G.T.

Gay was expelled from the secretariat generalship of the C.G.T. in 1948, when he was accused of taking part in a plot to assassinate Peron and his wife.

A peculiar feature of the Di Pietro broadcast was the fact that all radio stations carried it, just as they all used to carry Peron's speeches and the regular government propaganda broadcasts.

The new government had announced a schedule of daily government news bulletins but had made it clear that only the Government stations would carry them, privately-owned stations being free to transmit their own news.

Another feature of Di Pietro's speech that aroused some comment was his reference to Lonardi without the complimentary "His Excellency" usually employed in public references to Argentine presidents.

Controversy Stirred.

The broadcast, especially to La Prensa, already has stirred controversy among the Argentines who jammed Plaza de Mayo so jubilantly last Friday for Lonardi's inauguration as provisional president. A similar dispute has arisen over whether the new government was obliged to respect Peron's claim of asylum on a disabled Paraguayan gunboat here and to grant him a safe conduct guarantee to a haven in Paraguay.

Some feel cheated out of the full victory they had expected. Others believe such moves are the only safe strategy for the new government as it sets about undoing the results of 12 years of Peron dictatorship.

Many Argentines, including some of the most bitter anti-Peronists, believe the Peronista party would win an election if one were held today. This view is supported by the strong mass backing Peron had built up among the descamisados (shirtless ones) and his victory in his last election, in 1951.

It is expected that the provisional government will wait a year or possibly two years before holding elections. In the meantime it must try to attract to itself some of the mass support that kept Peron in power. In the last few days, the government radio station has broken into musical programs every

Gainza Paz Understands Spirit Of New Regime, Lonardi Says

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 26 (UPI).

ARGENTINE President Eduardo Lonardi said today that Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, owner of the seized Buenos Aires newspaper La Prensa, "understood perfectly the spirit animating my government."

Lonardi made this comment when shown a statement issued by Gainza Paz in New York, in which he said he believed the newspaper, seized by the regime of ousted President Juan D. Peron, must be returned to him through the courts rather than by executive action.

"I thank you for letting me know about Dr. Gainza Paz's telegram," Lonardi told reporters. "Despite the distance separating him from his fatherland, Gainza has understood perfectly the spirit animating my government. I would, in no case, seek to substitute for the legitimate courts. These, with full guarantees for themselves and for those who seek justice from them, will exercise freely the high function of rendering to everyone that which is his own."

"I don't believe it," was Gainza Paz' comment when asked in New York today that Argentine labor leader Hector Hugo di Pietro has declared that the new government "will not modify the situation of La Prensa." The Peron government gave the newspaper to the General Confederation of Labor after seizing it in 1951.

"If this government says it is going to comply with law and justice, it must as a matter of course return the newspaper to its rightful owners," Gainza Paz said.

Gainza Paz' comment was old in New York today that Argentine labor leader Hector Hugo di Pietro has declared that the new government "will not modify the situation of La Prensa." The Peron government gave the newspaper to the General Confederation of Labor after seizing it in 1951.

Thus the Lonardi government has been trying to make it clear that the revolution against Peronism does not mean a shift to a reactionary, anti-labor policy in the interests of the "Oligarchy"—the rich land-owning class which Peron assailed with such political effectiveness.

The most optimistic view here is that a free press and freedom of speech would help the workers clean out their own house, getting rid of the corruption and favoritism in the C.G.T. and creating a democratic labor movement.

A possible leader in such a housecleaning is a former backer of Peron, Cipriano Reyes. As head of the meat packing unions, he helped Peron seize power. Reyes later saw the labor movement being swallowed up in Peron's one-party organization and broke with the dictator. He was released last few minutes with brief bulletins saying that labor agreements will be honored and social benefits retained by the new regime.

Thus the Lonardi government has been trying to make it clear that the revolution against Peronism does not mean a shift to a reactionary, anti-labor policy in the interests of the "Oligarchy"—the rich land-owning class which Peron assailed with such political effectiveness.

The most optimistic view here is that a free press and freedom of speech would help the workers clean out their own house, getting rid of the corruption and favoritism in the C.G.T. and creating a democratic labor movement.

A possible leader in such a housecleaning is a former backer of Peron, Cipriano Reyes. As head of the meat packing unions, he helped Peron seize power. Reyes later saw the labor movement being swallowed up in Peron's one-party organization and broke with the dictator. He was released last few minutes with brief bulletins saying that labor agreements will be honored and social benefits retained by the new regime.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privilege and public plunder, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Timmerman Case

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I want to add my two cents worth to your editorial concerning the arrest and jailing of Marian Timmerman, the 17-year-old high school girl of Sullivan, Mo.

Don't blame our prosecuting attorney, who is a young man trying very hard to do his duty.

Some of the blame for this scandalous affair should be placed on the school superintendent of the Sullivan schools. He has most of the parents of Sullivan thoroughly subdued. The school board follows his lead.

Franklin county and our officials are not all bad even if they are Republicans.

I wish that Marian Timmerman and her parents had had a little more legal knowledge and had made a test case covering the fee which the Sullivan school charges for extra curricular activities.

It is a question in my mind whether a free public school has a legal right to make such a charge.

EVELYN MENING.
Sullivan, Mo.

Unimpressed

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I am not impressed with your editorial on daylight saving. This business of setting the clocks ahead is not nearly as unanimous as you imply. Among us eight-to-fivers we are very glad to see the clocks go back to where they should have been sooner. Just don't think we all love daylight saving; we just are compelled to endure it like war, mosquitoes and Democrats.

Skyrocket Is No Lulu

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The gregarious bluejay that made the headlines Sept. 7 and again was discussed in your letters column Sept. 17 is our bird "Skyrocket," not Lulu.

We were visiting relatives in Brentwood when he fell from the nest during a terrific storm on July 4. We named him Skyrocket. The parent birds made no attempt to care for the tiny, nearly naked bird so we set the children bring him home to care for.

We fed him hamburger, milk, bread and vitamins and he soon became a beautiful bluejay. While he was learning to fly his wing was injured when one of the children accidentally stepped on him. His wing had a peculiar droop since then and this along with paint on his feathers from his efforts to "help" our neighbor paint his fence made for positive identification.

He had been away 10 days when the Sept. 7 article was published and because of this and the co-operation of some kind people on Lynros drive, the bird was returned to us. He had lost a lot of weight and his feathers were bedraggled, indicating he had really been roughing it. But he soon became fat and safty again.

Now he has flown off again. We last saw him Sept. 17, the day Joan Diehl's letter was published. He was up to his old tricks, helping my husband build a room. He flies off with nails, tiny chips of wood and even pilfers the pencil from my husband's shirt pocket. He flew off as it grew dark and didn't come back for his morning meal.

We and our neighbors enjoy Skyrocket and his amusing antics are much and we hope we get him back again.

Incidentally, though we say "he," actually he's a she.

School Board Badges

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
What next for school board members? Gold-plated license plates for their automobiles?

Silver-plated badges are issued to policemen to enforce laws, and the school board issues gold-plated badges to its members with the privilege of violating them, as in the case of Dr. Young.

E.A.B.

If the Board of Education issued a badge costing $69.50 to Dr. Walter A. Young so it can be used as an excuse to attend board meetings and break our speed laws, then they had better call in those badges at once. A thousand business cards with the Board of Education's seal would cost only about $2. We need brains not badges on the school board.

ANGRY TAXPAYERS.

If the school board has money enough to buy badges, gold plated at that, for members of the school board, why doesn't it buy much needed books for the school children who have to share their books with others because there aren't enough books for each child? And since when is a school board meeting so important that the members have to speed to get there?

BADGELESS.

Where Policemen Live

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What is wrong with a St. Louis policeman living in the county with his family? Most of the city landlords will not rent to anyone with children, and if they did the rent would be so high a policeman could not pay it.

The Police Board has urged the men to try to recruit others to join the force. What man in his right mind would want to join the police and be forced to live in the city?

A DISGUSTED CITIZEN.

The President's Illness

The first and overwhelming concern of all Americans is now and will be for as long as necessary the health of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

From all the country go an anxious and regretful people's most earnest wishes for the President's full recovery at the earliest time possible.

The distressing news of Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack would have been a shock under any circumstances. It was the more of a blow because there had been so many reports from recent visitors to the summer White House at Denver that he looked and acted exceptionally fit.

From every indication the President was enjoying thoroughly his vacation in the Colorado mountains. The presidency is a crushing office and it is one of the characteristics of the former General that he has found ways to escape from its demands at intervals.

Mr. Eisenhower's illness has both immediate effects and long-term implications.

Since the stricken President must have rest and quiet for an indefinite period, others will be forced to assume temporarily many of the burdens of his great office. More than ever the members of the Cabinet will find it necessary to shoulder heavy responsibilities.

The weight on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will become still graver and everyone will hope for him the strength and wisdom to carry it.

At the summit conference Mr. Eisenhower spoke not only for the United States in a series of historic pronouncements in behalf of peace, but in a sense for the western democracies. It was the high point thus far in the President's career.

With the Geneva meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers just a month away, Mr. Dulles must now prepare himself for implementing the accords reached by the Soviet and allied chiefs of state in August.

It will be Secretary Dulles's misfortune that in all probability he will have no choice but to forego any further help from the President.

Additional responsibility of a most important kind falls on Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. As the chief legal officer and adviser in the Administration, Mr. Brownell will be called on to counsel various officials as to their duties and authority during Mr. Eisenhower's incapacity.

Vice President Nixon, who presided over a Cabinet meeting when Mr. Eisenhower was in Europe last month, may be tested as never before.

The long-term implications involve the general question of Mr. Eisenhower's future role in politics and in particular what relation he may have to the fast-approaching presidential campaign year of 1956.

These long-term matters are of the very substance of our domestic politics and they will be talked about extensively in the days to come. The Post-Dispatch's hope is that they might be postponed as of now.

Today the country's thoughts, and to a large extent the thoughts of the world, are for the President's welfare, for his untroubled rest and for his restoration to complete health.

Cool New Dream

"Construction of a six-lane overpass to carry the proposed Mark Twain Expressway over the Wabash Railroad tracks in St. Louis county near Cool Valley . . ." we read in the news item, and couldn't get any further. Cool Valley, Duke Ellington wrote a piece called "Warm Valley" for Johnny Hodges' alto sax, and it is full of lotus flowers, and soft breezes sighing, and young love. But Cool Valley. Don't know but what we like it even better.

We can see it now. A little break between two gentle ridges, with houses of frosty white, topped by moon-blue roofs. Small, playful and friendly breezes—a later improvement on air-conditioning—frolic around in it. The grass is a light green, the flowers pastel, and everyone looks as if he had kept cool with and since Coolidge.

That old dream of the Kentucky colonel sitting on the wide, white-columned portico and, looking out over his acres of lawn, sipping a mint julep—that old dream will have to take a back seat. It isn't in a class with the poetry we have in mind now: Cool Valley. Cool, man. Cool.

The Light of La Prensa

"The Argentine people are fully conscious of their right to have truthful and complete information. I have the conviction that Argentines will never give up those rights or relinquish those principles and that La Prensa must reappear." —Dr. Alberto Galina Paz, 1951.

As Argentina struggles to restore a free press, these words of four years ago still represent a test of the return of liberty. For when the Peron dictatorship seized La Prensa and toppled the famous beacon from its roof, a light of freedom went out. It must go on again.

For nearly a century La Prensa and its beacon symbolized honest information and public service. Eighty-five years ago its founder said: "Truth, honesty—that is our point of departure." And from that point La Prensa became the world's greatest Spanish-language newspaper.

But in 1951, La Prensa became a symbol of the ruthlessness of fascist oppression. For it was destroyed by Juan Peron after long efforts to censor or control it had failed.

Ten years earlier, the Peron Government warned the press against criticism under a law forbidding "disrespect." The law made truth more disrespectful than untruth, but still La Prensa grew in public esteem.

The Peronistas then turned to control of newsprint supplies, forcing La Prensa to surrender and then buy back at higher prices its own paper stocks. But even control of newsprint failed to control the news.

In the end the Peronistas fomented a strike by news vendors, sent armed hoodlums to attack La Prensa employees, and closed the newspaper plant on grounds that its management had threatened national security. Publisher Galina Paz was compelled to flee. The Peronist Congress expropriated La Prensa, and finally gave the remains to Peron's labor federation to operate as a kept sheet.

Hence today the case of La Prensa is a different kind of symbol. With the Peron dictatorship overthrown, Argentina's newspapers are beginning to publish unrestricted news once more. La Prensa staff members have thrown the busts of Peron into the streets, and wiped references to Peron from their pages.

But the injustice to La Prensa and to the cause of truth and honesty will not be erased until the newspaper is restored to its rightful owners, who helped build it into an institution of the free world. The Inter-American Press Association has already appealed to Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi to return La Prensa to those from whom it was taken. Surely the new government, pledged to liberty, will comply.

When Dr. Alberto Galina Paz re-enters the La Prensa building on the Avenida de Mayo, then will be the time to reignite the beacon above it.

The CAB Says Pilot Error

If the pilot or the co-pilot had been watching the altimeter and artificial horizon, the crash of an American Airlines Convair plane last March 20 near the Springfield, Mo., airport probably would not have occurred, according to a Civil Aeronautics Board report.

As the report indicates, both pilots apparently were alertly staring out of the cockpit into the darkness at the distant airport lights. Underneath them, closer than they realized, was sparsely settled, flat, dark terrain. The report notes that in such circumstances some flight crews have received an erroneous impression of altitude and the illusion that the plane is flying horizontally with respect to a distant light when it really is nosing down.

Under these circumstances a quick glance at the instruments would have shown the plane's true position. But for some inexplicable reason neither man took that look—or at least not until

Enough Without a Tax

If for any reason the amount of state school moneys available is insufficient to pay in full the amount necessary under this act, the money for each district shall be reduced by the same ratio that the total money available bears to the full amount necessary as determined by the state board of education.

So reads Section 7 of the School Foundation Plan, which will be submitted to voters Oct. 4 as Referendum Measure No. 2. Section 7 provides the best answer to those who are clamoring for immediate passage of a two-cent cigarette tax on the ground that without this tax there won't be enough money to finance the Foundation Plan.

Why is it so urgently necessary to finance the Foundation Plan in full this year? That is the question which seldom gets attention.

Actually, if the cigarette tax is not adopted next month there will still be available for state aid to schools more than $102,000,000 in the current biennium, more than 10 per cent over what was available in the preceding biennium.

With funds of that magnitude being distributed under the Foundation Plan, surely the schools would not exactly be impoverished. Each district, as provided by Section 7, would get a certain percentage of the aid it would get if the Plan were financed 100 per cent.

True, some districts might come out with less state aid than they have been receiving under the old distribution scheme. But if the Foundation Plan is fair and equitable, and an improvement on the old, then some decreases as well as increases in state aid should be expected. Isn't one of the purposes of the Plan to require districts which have been dodging their local tax obligations to increase local support?

This is why it seems to us that Missouri voters would be wise to vote for the Foundation Plan (Referendum Measure No. 2) but against the cigarette tax (Referendum Measure No. 1) at this time. Then the Legislature ought to undertake a study of all state expenditures and tax revenues, with a view to drafting a comprehensive fiscal and budget policy.

A cigarette tax for school aid may well turn out to be necessary at some future time, but for the present the schools, in our opinion, are assured of generous state aid without it.

Housing Authority Makes Sure

The St. Louis Housing Authority is holding up acquisition of land for three new public housing projects until it can re-study the particular areas, two in North St. Louis and one on the South Side. Since this will not jeopardize federal aid to the $21,915,000 apartment developments, the city has nothing to lose.

Moreover, there are two good reasons for a close second look. First, opposition has developed among some residents of the districts marked for clearance. Second, selection of the three areas was not based on studies so detailed as those employed for most urban redevelopment projects.

A re-study, therefore, seems to be worthwhile. Once the Authority is sure of itself it can move ahead with confidence and determination. Let us hope that is soon. More than 1400 housing units for low-income families are involved. Every day these units are delayed is a day in which some families must continue to exist in sub-standard housing, some of it rat-infested.

Creating a New City

An important new Missouri municipality may be in the making in South St. Louis county. A group of business men in that area is attempting to create a single city by consolidating the Affton, Lemay and Gardenville districts with seven smaller adjoining communities, some hardly more than subdivisions. The new town would have an area of some 50 square miles and a population of 60,000, making it the state's fifth largest.

Creating such a municipality is much easier said than done, of course. Imposing hurdles would have to be cleared—local rivalries, political and legal problems, the fear of something new. In the end, though, it might be very much worthwhile. The consolidated community certainly ought to produce more efficient municipal services than presently are offered in the individual villages and unincorporated areas.

The business men who are making the attempt call themselves "Progressive Neighbors." They are tackling the problem of local government where it should be tackled—at local level.

Their progress should be watched with more than a little interest by persons in other parts of St. Louis county who might benefit by municipal consolidation. Directors of the three school districts that coexist with the municipalities in the South county area also should keep an eye on the project, for schools take the big bite out of the local tax dollar.

'SOMEBODY'S CHANGED THE COURSE OF THIS STREAM TOO'

—From The Washington Post

Suburbs to City in a Hurry

Railroad lines could be transformed into major traffic arteries at much less cost than construction of expressways, writer says; such rapid transit caters to people rather than autos; would mean faster, better urban transportation, fewer street jams.

Robert L. Banks in Railway Progress, Published by the Federation for Railway Progress

There is considerable evidence of a diversion of highway or other public revenues.

Financing by general credit is justified on the grounds that adequate public transportation is a community service as essential as schools, streets, fire and police protection and that every resident benefits by it (at least in standby service and reduced traffic congestion) whether or not he is a regular passenger.

As the Regional Plan Association of New York says: "If use of railroads for commuting is permitted to decline in favor of motor vehicle commuting, traffic congestion in the central business areas, and the cost of relieving it, will increase out of all proportion to the number of persons transported. The paramount public need is for a well-balanced transportation system of highway, parkway and railroad development."

This implies an awareness that the railroad rights of way which bisect and diverge from all our large cities are ideally suited to serve the major patterns of traffic flow in their metropolitan areas; it also implies an unexploited identity of interest among the railroads and the cities they serve.

Power Trusts Back Despite '35 Law?

THE RESENTMENT AND FRUSTRATION of the South and the West over financial and capital investment control by the East, with concentration in Wall Street, which boils up periodically in Congress, is erupting again in an investigation by the Senate Judiciary's Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Directing the inquiry is a Westerner, the witty veteran, O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming. For years he has hammered on Eastern financial domination and has been the Senate's leading expert on monopoly since the exhaustive investigation he conducted into our industrial and financial economy in the late 1930's through the temporary National Economic Committee, as it was called, or TNEC.

The current O'Mahoney inquiry takes us still further back beyond that, however, to other investigations which the Senator himself recalls from time to time.

Undermining 1935 Law.

They were the Federal Trade Commission's comprehensive investigation in the late 1920's and early 1930's into the "power trust" and that made by the Senate Banking Committee into the operations of the New York Stock Exchange and banking and investment companies during 1933-34.

For this present investigation, which deals with utilities in the West and with New York investment company operations in that far field, is exploring the question of whether the 1935 Utility Holding Company Act is being undermined and another "power trust" developing.

The trail being followed by the Senator and his staff began with an attempted merger, which has not yet materialized, between Puget Sound Power and Light Company, operating in Western Washington, and the Washington Water Power Company.

New Yorkers Seek Merger.

From a parade of witnesses representing big New York investment companies, it was shown that these companies created among themselves a "Puget Sound Power and Light Company stockholders committee" with offices in Wall Street.

It consisted entirely of men from the New York companies who sought to promote the merger with a fund of $24,000 contributed entirely by the New York companies—"with not a thin dime" from actual stockholders directly, as Senator O'Mahoney brought out.

Though this seems to be a common practice in New York, it seemed strange to Senator O'Mahoney that such a group in New York, 3,000 miles from the utilities involved, should be promoting a merger affecting

MADISON COUNTY CHILD AID REPORT

Group Urges Social Planning Council to Co-ordinate 9 Agencies' Work.

Establishment of a Madison County Social Planning Council to co-ordinate the work of the nine social service agencies that provide services to children in the Illinois county was recommended today in a survey report by the Wood River Branch, American Association of University Women.

Started originally as an inquiry into the need for a detention home, the survey was broadened to include a study of the existing services and facilities in the county for neglected, dependent, abandoned, delinquent and behavior problem children.

A finding that the greatest needs were more foster homes and provisions for emergency care and emergency funds prompted a recommendation that the County Board of Supervisors make available subsidized foster homes open on a 24-hour basis and accessible to all social work agencies, police departments and probations officers.

Other recommendations included the provision in each community of a maximum security room separated from the regular jail facilities and early consideration of a county detention home.

Because there were more than 1,600 children with behavior problems in 1954, the report urged that the proposed Social Planning Council make an early study to determine the best way of making psychiatric services available.

The report urged that services of the social work agencies be extended on a county-wide basis and that a child welfare unit be established in the county by the Illinois Department of Public Welfare.

It was also recommended that job qualifications be standardized for personnel of the social work agencies, that better training be made available, that more adequate records be kept, that definite job qualifications be set up for the post of county probation officer and that the post be filled through a merit-type examination. Better salaries for the probation office and a larger staff also were urged.

CHURCHES OVER U.S. PRAY FOR PRESIDENT

Most Congregations Offer Supplication During Regular Services.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (UPI)—The nation prayed yesterday for President Eisenhower's recovery.

At the same time, persons of every faith and every political hue joined to assure the President their wishes were with him. Adlai E. Stevenson, defeated for the Presidency nearly three years ago, sent Mr. Eisenhower a message telling him that all Americans were praying for his recovery. Leaders of both political parties sent similar messages.

Because of the suddenness of the President's illness, there were few special services as such. Prayers came in regular services. In Jewish synagogues they were coupled today with the observance of the religion's most solemn holy day, Yom Kippur.

In the capital, the President's pastor, at the request of Mrs. Eisenhower, led 1800 worshippers yesterday in prayer. The Rev. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the National Presbyterian Church, said worshippers at the two morning services appeared grave and concerned.

At Abilene, Kan., where Mr. Eisenhower grew up, shocked residents filled churches to offer prayers for his health.

At McCook, Neb., publisher Harry Strunk of the McCook Daily Gazette said he would stop all operations at 11 a.m. today, while the paper's employees pray silently for one minute. The silent moment of prayer will be repeated every day until the President is "on his feet and ready to go to work again," Strunk said.

New York Gov. Averell Harriman sent a telegram to Mr. Eisenhower wishing him a "rapid recovery and return to full health and vigor." Mrs. Harriman joined the Governor, in a separate wire to Mrs. Eisenhower, expressing their "heartfelt sympathy in this time of anxiety."

In addition to his telegram to Mr. Eisenhower, Stevenson issued this statement:

"President Eisenhower's health is a matter of concern to the whole world. The news of his heart attack is very distressing, and I am sure all Americans regardless of our political and other differences share my anxiety and earnestly pray for his speedy and total recovery."

Other comments included:

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action Committee: "We join with the rest of the nation in putting aside politics and expressing our heartfelt wishes for the good health and speedy recovery of the President."

Sen. Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee: "That's terrible. I'm awfully sorry... He's been going mighty hard... He's badly needed."

Prayers for the President's recovery were offered at church services in the St. Louis area yesterday by Protestant and Catholic congregations, and by Hebrew congregations beginning the observance of Yom Kippur last night.

BELLEVILLE GRADE SCHOOL TAX RATE RISE DEFEATED

A proposal to increase the tax rate for educational purposes in the Belleville Grade School District from the present 64 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 85 cents was defeated Saturday by a vote of 1453 to 1082.

A simple majority would have been required for passage in the special election.

Proponents of the increase had said the higher tax rate was necessary because of increased enrollment in the schools and higher salaries of teachers. As a result of the election the overall rate will remain at 87½ cents per $100 assessed valuation, including 23½ cents for building purposes.

He was 72 years old. He was formerly research assistant in economics for the Brookings Institution.

In accepting the honor on behalf of the company, W. E. Williamson, superintendent of automotive equipment for Public Service Co., paid tribute to the skill of the men in the general shops. Nearly 100 transit companies were entered in the maintenance competition which is conducted annually by Bus Transportation, a national trade journal.

The award is based on dependability, appearance and everyday cleanliness of the company's bus fleet as well as on shop efficiency, modernness of tools, working conditions and high standards of workmanship.

JEWS OBSERVING DAY OF ATONEMENT

Period Ends at Sunset— Solemn Services at Temples and Synagogues.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most solemn holiday on the Jewish religious calendar, was observed today in St. Louis and throughout the world. Observance began at sunset yesterday and will end at sunset today.

In a sermon delivered this morning, Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel told his congregation that the notion that one religion is as good as another is a popular fallacy of our time.

"A universal religion," he said, "is better than a tribal religion; an ethical religion better than one that fosters superstition; a religion that emphasizes good work better than one that minimizes it."

Yom Kippur, traditionally a time when divine pardon is sought for sins, was inaugurated with solemn services at temples and synagogues yesterday. The ninth psalm was chosen as text by Rabbi Samuel Thurman of United Hebrew Temple.

"We are Jews," Rabbi Thurman said, "have no greater heritage than our faith that we are created in the image of God, nor higher destiny than that we can earn for ourselves a place in eternity."

At evening services before Congregation B'nai Amoona, Rabbi Abraham E. Halpern offered a prayer for the prompt return to health of President Eisenhower. "The world needs his help in our search for peace for all mankind," he said.

sion, concerned with the university's policy on religion, included Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley and Arne J. Haack, dean of students.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 26 (UPI)—Dr. Arthur Chester Millspaugh, former foreign trade adviser to the State Department and financial adviser to the governments of Iran and Haiti, was found dead in his apartment here yesterday. He was 72 years old. He was formerly research assistant in economics for the Brookings Institution.

In accepting the honor on behalf of the company, W. E. Williamson, superintendent of automotive equipment for Public Service Co., paid tribute to the skill of the men in the general shops. Nearly 100 transit companies were entered in the maintenance competition which is conducted annually by Bus Transportation, a national trade journal.

The award is based on dependability, appearance and everyday cleanliness of the company's bus fleet as well as on shop efficiency, modernness of tools, working conditions and high standards of workmanship.

U.C.L.A. Hurdled, Terps Appear on Way to Third Unbeaten Season

Oklahoma Could Be Bowl Foe

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP)—Unless they run into unexpected complications, the big, bad Terps from the University of Maryland could well glide through to their third unbeaten, untied season in the last five years.

While it's true that Jim Tatum's Split-T outfit doesn't play as tough a schedule as some of the other top teams, it's equally true that the Terps can beat the best—namely U.C.L.A.

Maryland won victory No. 2 last Saturday with a 7-0 decision over the defending Pacific Coast Conference champions. Now the Terps have eight games to go for a perfect season. None of their opposition figures to be as rough as U.C.L.A.

This week, the Tatum forces visit Baylor of the Southwest Conference. Then, on successive weeks, they play Wake Forest, North Carolina, Syracuse, South Carolina, Louisiana State, Clemson and George Washington.

That's not a list that would make a strong man shudder. Baylor and perhaps North Carolina are the only teams that should move it close.

Note Dame's Hopes Rise.

U.C.L.A., for its part, appears to be out of the running for the mythical national championship. The Uclans are eligible for the Rose Bowl this year, though, and they figure to get stronger as the year goes on—especially with so fine a triple-threat as Ronnie (Fort) Knox spearheading the defense. This week they play Washington State in their first Pacific Coast Conference game.

Note Dame, another club overlooked in the pre-season estimates, apparently has found someone to fill All-American Ralph Guglielmi's shoes. He is Paul Hornung, a fine all-around offensive back who directed the Irish attack in the 17-0 shutout of Southern Methodist.

Coch Terry Brennan's hopes probably will ride with Hornung. However, the Notre Dame schedule is pockmarked with traps, so it is too early for a definite opinion of the club. This week's opponent is Indiana.

Maryland vs. Oklahoma?

If anyone is disposed to think in terms of bowl games at this early date, how about Maryland and Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, New Year's day?

Duke appears to be the only team capable of giving Maryland a tussle for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. The two don't meet, so the Orange Bowl representative will be decided on what they do against the other teams in the league.

As for Oklahoma, the Sooners probably will win the Big Seven title as they please as usual. They did have trouble with North Carolina before emerging with a 13-4 victory for No. 20 in a row. But even if they are not as strong as usual, the rest of the Big Seven is so weak, the Sooners could play their third stringers and still win it.

Both Kansas and Tulsa snapped long losing streaks Saturday. The Jayhawks held the dubious distinction of taking a 17-game streak—longest in college football—into the game against Washington State. Kansas won it 13-0. Tulsa, which had lost 15 in a row, whipped Hardin Simmons, 41-9.

In Michigan, the Big Ten favorite, whopped Missouri, 42-7. Georgia Tech, probably the best in the South, had some bad moments before downing Florida, 14-7. Arkansas, defending Southwest Conference king, sailed past Oklahoma A. and M., 21-0. Upsets: Virginia Poly over Penn (33-0), Washington over Minnesota (30-0), Miami of Ohio over Northwestern (25-14) and Kentucky over Mississippi (21-14).

Several players collected three touchdowns, on major teams, including Bill Agnew of Princeton, Jack Call of Colgate, Leo Burke of V.P.I. and Ron Kramer of Michigan. Kramer also made good on five conversions.

Valle Eleven Victor Over Chaminade, 14-13

Valle High School of Ste. Genevieve gained a 14-13 victory over Chaminade in a Catholic Football League game on the loser's field. Gil Effinger's plunge for the extra point after the second touchdown gave Valle what proved to be the winning margin.

Rivers Is Favored.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (UP)—Neal Rivers, slugging middle-weight of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is favored at 2-1 to beat Bobby Dawson tonight in their TV radio 10-rounders and spool another home coming. It will be Dawson's first American fight in nearly six years. The 26-year-old Georgia-born boxer-puncher has been campaigning in Europe since early 1950. He now lives in New York.

Upsets Feature Play in Pro Football League Inaugurals

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP)—The National Football League standings looked strange today with Cleveland and Detroit, the league's bully boys for three years, on the bottom looking up.

One game doesn't make a season, of course, even in the NFL, where they only play dozen games a season. But both Titans had long winning streaks over their opponents smashed as the Washington Redskins whipped Cleveland 27-17 and Green Bay 21-17.

The last time Green Bay beat Detroit was in 1949.

T-M Golf Final

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 26 (UPI)—Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., added a third Trans-Miss golf title to her collection by trouncing Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, Md., 11 and 9, over a rain-soaked Twin Hills Country Club course here.

The first 18 holes were played in a light rain and the last round in a misty fog. Miss Riley played consistent golf despite the weather, finishing the match on the twenty-seventh hole only one over par.

Miss Riley, winner of the tournament in 1947 and 1948 and medalist in 1946 and 1950, gained the right to meet Miss Downey in the final by defeating Pat Stapler of Midland, Tex., one-up, on the nineteenth hole Saturday. Miss Downey, champion of the Trans-Miss meet in 1951 and the 1955 tourney medalist, advanced to the final round by beating Grace Demoss Smith of Miami, Fla., one-up.

Miss Riley won the Texas state championship last year and is a Curtis Cup player... This was the twenty-fifth playing of the Trans-Mississippi golf tournament, one of the largest of its kind for amateur golfers.

'No Shakeups Planned Before He Sees Giants in Action' -- Rigney

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 26 (UPI)—Bill Rigney, the new field boss of the New York Giants said today he has no plans of personnel shakeups until he has looked over all the players in spring training.

"I won't believe that any of them are over the hill until I have seen them in action myself," said the 42-year-old Rigney, currently engaged with his Minneapolis Millers in the "Little World Series" against Rochester of the International League.

"Actually, I haven't been able to give the new job much thought. Right now I'm worried about winning the series for the American Association," Rigney added.

As soon as the series is settled, Rigney said, he will meet with Giants' President Horace Stoneham in New York to discuss terms of his new contract.

As of now, Rigney said, he does not know the length of the contract or his major league salary.

A large segment of Giant fans have blamed the Giants poor showing this year because of a need of new faces. Stoneham apparently took the first step in that direction when he hired the youthful Minneapolis pilot.

Rigney had directed the Millers only two seasons after eight years employment as a Giant shortstop.

Rigney is a fiery competitor in the manner of his predecessor, Lee Durocher.

"I want players who like to play baseball," Rigney said. "Not only for the money but for the fun they get out of it."

Rigney indicated he will try to find spots on the Giants for several standouts on the Minneapolis club, such as third baseman Rance Pless, outfielder Monte Irvin, George Wilson and Bob Lennon, and pitcher Al Worthington. Irvin is a former Giant star who has returned to the Millers where he displayed some of his 1951 form that helped the Giants' successful pennant drive.

Durocher Says Goodbye.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (UPI)—A hard-hitting baseball guy named Lee Durocher almost broke down and cried when it came time for him to leave the game.

Silently, with the strain showing in the lines on his face, the guy they called "The Lip" sat in front of his locker in the dressing room and shook hands with each of the New York Giant players as they walked up to him. "The Lip" muttered a low "so long" to each.

Out on the field at the Polo Grounds the Giants had just finished yesterday's season-ending doubleheader against the Phillies, and with it, Durocher's seven-and-one-half-year reign as the Giant manager.

Durocher, who announced his retirement Saturday after 30 years in baseball, is moving on to other, yet-unannounced fields.

The proud guy who led the Giants to their "miracle" pennant in 1951 and to the world championship in 1954 insists that he has no plans to go to any other baseball team, that as far as he now knows, he is finished with baseball.

Durocher made his "farewell address" to the Giants' fans on the pre-game television show before yesterday's twin bill.

"Don't think I won't pick up a newspaper wherever I am to see how the Giants are doing," he concluded.

Then it was that his strident voice broke. He had a tough time to make the words "so long" come out and his eyes welled with tears.

"He's the best manager in baseball," said team captain Al Dark. "We're going to miss him."

27 YEARS OF DEPENDABLE AIR TRANSPORTATION

7 KILLED WHEN C-47 CRASHES AND BURNS

Wrecked Cargo Plane Found in Landing Position—Apparently Bounced.

BURNS, Wyo., Sept. 26 (AP)—Investigation of the fiery crash of a C-47 Air Force plane which killed seven men Saturday night continued near here today.

Identities of the victims, who were flying from Stead Air Force Base near Reno, Nev., to Selfridge Air Force Base at Detroit, have not been released by Air Force officials.

The wrecked plane was found sitting in a normal landing position in a field about two miles north and one mile east of here. However, a slight indentation in the ground 100 yards behind the charred hulk indicated it struck there and bounced.

The crash occurred while a light snow was falling, but Air Force officials said no radio messages were received from the plane that indicated it was in trouble.

Widespread Search on for Three Missing Jet Pilots.

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va., Sept. 26 (AP)—A widespread search was under way today for three Langley Air Force Base jet pilots whose planes were reported missing 12 hours after a wing mate was killed in a crash in a back bay marsh at Hampton.

Two of the missing pilots were flying over Chesapeake bay when contact was lost late yesterday. The third was on a routine navigational mission over the northeastern section of Maine.

Killed in the crash which occurred early Saturday was First Lt. James R. Henley, 24 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Henley of Piper, Kan. He died when his F84F fighter-bomber crashed in a swampy

Waiting for Mother

MOTHER EXPLAINS LENGTHY ABSENCE FROM HER CHILD

Mrs. Mary Fortner, whose 1½-year-old son, Anthony, was turned over to police yesterday when persons keeping the child became alarmed at the mother's absence from home, went to the Newstead avenue station today to explain the situation.

She said she had left the boy in the care of other roomers at 4543 East Webster place while she worked as a tavern waitress Saturday night. She returned home at 1:30 a.m. yesterday and then left immediately, telling the persons caring for Anthony that she was going to get something to eat, police reported.

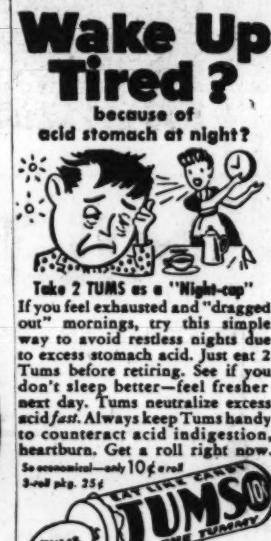

Mrs. Fortner told police she went with friends to an East Side steak house, then rode around East St. Louis and started a shift at 10 a.m. yesterday at an East Side tavern, returning to the Webster place address about 9 p.m. When told Anthony had been turned over to police, she said she decided to sleep until this morning before reporting her return.

On advice from Circuit Court and Juvenile Court officers, police said Anthony would be kept at City Hospital—where police took him yesterday—until a court determination of custody is made when Mrs. Fortner's petition for divorce is heard in Circuit Court Oct. 10. Mrs. Fortner, who was not held today, said she and her husband, George, had been separated since May.

Doctors predict that the medical journals also will have something to say about those 27 holes, especially at the altitude of the Rockies. Doctors advise exercise—but regularly and in moderation, not in spurts of great exertion.

SEOUL, Sept. 26 (UPI)—

American troops used tear gas and fire hoses to drive off 200 Korean students who rushed a barricade at Wolmi island yesterday in a demonstration against Communist truce inspectors, the United States Army said today.

The Army said there were no injuries on either side. Korean police charged that six Korean students were injured by American guards.

An Eighth Army spokesman said a band of "unruly" students charged the gate during a demonstration against the Red Czech and Polish members of the truce inspection team quartered on the island near Inchon. He said they were turned back with fire hoses and tear gas.

Business Outlook

AFTER MILD MONEY SQUEEZE WHAT?

By J. A. Livingston

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.

NOT in more than a quarter of a century, not since the booming 'twenties, have the bankers of the United States felt so important, so in demand.

Everybody, or nearly everybody, so it seems, wants a loan—the large corporation about to build a steel mill, the purchaser of a new automobile on installments, the contractor starting a new housing development, the druggist getting ready for his Christmas trade in cosmetics.

That explains the attendance at the eighty-first annual convention of the American Bankers Association at the Conrad Hilton here—highest in 33 years. Bank presidents and directors feel pretty good about earnings—as well they may this year. So more vice presidents get the expense-account nod.

BANKERS ARE ENJOYING—yes, enjoying the word—a mild money squeeze. One of the least publicized features of the convention is the convocation of treasurers from big corporations—General Electric, United States Steel, Chrysler, General Motors Acceptance Corp., Philip Morris, American Telephone, and so on. "Why," a banker asked one of them, "do you come to this rat-race—one round of receptions, breakfasts, luncheons, and parties after another?" The treasurer answered: "We have accounts in 117 banks throughout the country. I can meet most of our bankers here under one roof. I can discuss my lines of credit, know where I stand. It's a time saver, despite all the parties."

BECAUSE OF THE SHORTAGE of money—credit—a record number of treasurers registered for the convention. Not to make loans. That isn't done. But to renew handshakes. The treasurers are seeking out the bankers for a change. In most postwar years it has been the other way 'round. The demand for money is so great, bankers have become rationers of credit. Loans are at a record high. Banks, themselves, are borrowing about $750,000,000 from the Federal Reserve System. The alternative is to turn away customers. Not only that, but banks have had to sell securities to meet customers' requests for money.

As a result, prime commercial borrowers now have to pay 3 1/4% interest, the same as in the tight squeeze of 1953. Six months ago, money was freely offered to big-time borrowers at 3%. In 1946, the prime rate was 1 1/4%; in 1948, it was 2%. Not till December, 1951, during the Korean war, did it get to 3%.

THERE'S A TENDENCY among some bankers and economists to say: "This is 1953 all over again. Money's tight now but it won't stay tight long." In early 1953, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board decided that the boom might degenerate into a bust. So the Reserve Banks raised the rediscount rate—the price bankers must pay to borrow money—from 1 1/4% to 2%. At the same time, the Treasury floated a 3 1/4% bond issue. Interest rates rose. Bond prices fell. That choked off borrowing. The shortage of money quickly became a surplus. Interest rates dropped. And business declined. We were in the 1953-S 'Active Ease' Purpose: To stimulate business.

THE ASSUMPTION IS that if a money pinch develops again, the Federal Reserve will step in again—and make credit plentiful. Don't be too sure. Only recently, Reserve Board members encouraged Reserve Banks to boost the discount rate from 1 1/4% to 2 1/4%—the highest rate since the depression. They did this while looking at charts of the 1933-54 period. They weren't afraid of history. The Reserve Board's objective is to stretch out prosperity. So long as production and employment continue at high levels, the Reserve Board will be perfectly content to let interest rates stay where they are, or rise even higher. And so will the Administration, looking ahead to the election in November 1956.

SO, ONLY IF BUSINESS begins to falter, only if housing begins to slip because mortgage money's hard to get, only if automobile sales dwindle because credit terms are too stringent, only if new construction of roads and public building slides (because municipalities won't pay the price in the bond market), only under such circumstances will the Reserve Board shift from its present tight-rein policy to one of loose money.

Prices of autos, TV sets, clothes have been popping upward. The purpose today is to prevent inflation. Easy money wouldn't free the supply of manpower, steel, or copper. If anything, it would increase demand.

CHICAGO FIRM MAY BUY FEDERAL CEMENT TILE CO.

Option to buy all stock in the Federal Cement Tile Co., Chicago, which has a plant here at 1367 South Kingshighway, has been obtained by Miller & Hart, Inc., Chicago, it was announced today. Proposed purchase price is $1,265,000.

No change in management is contemplated, it was reported by John Brouk, a vice president of Federal and president of its wholly owned St. Louis subsidiary, the Precast Slab and Tile Co. The parent company is the largest manufacturer of concrete roof and floor slabs in the United States.

Stockholders of Miller & Hart, a cold storage firm, will vote Friday on the proposed merger of their company with the Mount Vernon (O.) Bridge

Co. If this merger is approved, the new company would acquire ownership of Federal by exercising its option.

CORPORATE BONDS OFF, U.S. ISSUES UP

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP)—

Prices slumped on the bond market early today following the pattern of stocks on news of the President's heart attack.

Selling was heavy with losses ranging 1 to almost 3 points. American Telephone & Telegraph's new 3% convertibles dropped 2% at 127 1/2 on an opening block of 1000. Later, however, they recovered somewhat, rising to 127 1/2.

United States Treasury Bonds advanced in the over-the-counter market. Dealers said this was in keeping with the tradition that government issues respond just the opposite to stocks to outstanding news. Dealers quoted both intermediate and long range obligations up 4-32 to 6-32 earlier, volume was slight, however.

Italian and South American dollar items were mixed in a slow foreign action.

Declining 1 to 3 points in the corporate list at one time were Lehigh Valley Railroad 4 1/2s, Frisco Road 4 1/2s, Erie 4 1/2s.

New York Central 4s of 1998 and Pacific Gas & Electric New Financing.

New financing activity this week is dominated by tax-exempt municipal offerings, led Wednesday by the $69,000,000 of 40-year Richmond-Petersburg, Va., turnpike authority revenue bonds.

In the corporate field, First Boston Corp. leads a group of underwriters offering $35,000,000 of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. preferred stock on 1915, off 3.0.

94 while the next day Baltimore County, Md., comes to market with $15,900,000 in various purpose bonds, due June 1, 1958.

GRIM FAREWELL FOR PERON

An Argentine soldier with bayonet-tipped rifle symbolizes his country's farewell for ousted President Juan Peron as he watches Paraguayan gunboat, with Peron aboard, pull away from the dock in Buenos Aires yesterday. The gunboat, on which Peron has been a refugee for nearly a week, steamed three miles upriver and dropped anchor in the Rio de la Plata estuary, to await safe conduct papers from revolutionary government before carrying Peron into exile.

About 50 of the old model Demons have not been moved from the plant by the Navy because their Westinghouse J-40 engines were found to be not powerful enough. The planes cost more than $65,000,000. Twenty-nine of them may be modified for Navy use at a cost of $4,250,000; the others will be used in ground tests.

Cowardly Marshmallow

Even if Manna Fell,
He Couldn't Eat It

By Hal Boyle

NEWS YORK, Sept. 26 (AP). If manna suddenly fell from heaven, half the people in America would be afraid to taste it. They are on a diet—and manna might have too many calories.

HAL BOYLE

I'm in that fix myself right now. Again I am a cowardly marshmallow, a fat man without the courage to stay that way. Like millions of other overweight frady cats, I am on a diet.

And I wonder why. What's the use? As best I can figure it, I am now on my fourth diet in 10 years.

"If you want to stay healthy, keep in shape," warn the doctors, many of whom prefer themselves to match the silhouette of an Idaho potato.

Yeah, but what shape? I now go on a diet four times a year—every time my weight hits a plump 200 pounds. In two months I am back down to 175. Then food ceases to be just another nasty four-letter word, and I start eating normally again. In exactly another month I'm crowding the old 200-pound level again, and the old starvation routine must begin again.

WHY? MERELY BECAUSE I have let myself become a social polo, a craven sycophant to the present ridiculous crowd theory that blubber is a handicap. Let's go tell that to a whale. He'd laugh 'em right out of the water.

In the broad-minded world of nature there is more tolerance than in the human realm. There is room for the giraffe as well as the mole, the gazelle as well as the elephant. Each has his own shape, and they don't kick each other. Even a lion won't poke his nose at the elephant. He knows better.

Why, then, should human elephants have to take so much guff and nonsense from the human gazelles, who have to stand twice in the same place to throw a shadow? What virtue is there in looking like a thermometer every time you swallow a glass of pink lemonade?

THE OLD AIM of man was to be fat and sassy. The goal now is to be skinny and leering.

Personally, I think the barrage of insults against the fat man is based on nothing but envy. A thin man loves company in his misery, and the mere sight of a fat man waddling contentedly and serenely through life drives him wild.

"You eat so much because you're unhappy," he suggests evilly to the fat man. "You're worried. You're sick, sick, sick."

HOW LONG are we fat people going to put up with this buster from the gazelle herds? Why don't we organize into a society. Wouldn't you like to become a poff—a member of the Proud Order of Fat Folks?

We could start off by declaring a world-wide "Year of the Fat Man." During that year any beanpole-shaped heckler who yiped, "Aren't you putting on weight?" would be promptly sat upon and forced to eat a gallon of mashed eaten.

Anyway, the idea offers food for reflection. And right now that's the only kind of food I get on my fourth diet—food that makes you reflect less in a mirror.

Tips for Teens

GODNIGHT KISSES! That was the question in a recent letter printed here . . . from a junior high school girl.

The answer was this: It's how much you like a boy that decides about kisses—not the fact that he has taken you to a movie twice.

A high school senior, a girl, adds this:

"I read your answer in the paper to the girl who thought it was all right to let a boy kiss her after their first date. I agree with you that it depends on whether she really likes him very much or not. Otherwise why kiss him?"

ELINOR WILLIAMS "That's why I think a girl should wait until she has dated a boy several times before she lets him kiss her. Also for this other reason. When you first meet a boy, you think you like each other, so you have a date, but you probably don't know each other very well. After several dates, you get acquainted more."

"As you get to know some boys more, you like them more—and that's time enough to think of kissing. But sometimes when you know a boy better, you don't like him as much as you thought you would and don't care about dating him any more. That's why it's better to wait and see how it turns out before letting him kiss you."

"You just don't know, at first, whether you're going to like the boy or not. You might like him and you might not. It's also better to know that he really likes you, too, then if he suddenly drops you, your feelings aren't so hurt if you haven't kissed him."

WILLIAM McDERMOTT, extolling the merits of simple psychology, cites the case of a woman who came to the family counselor declaring, "I hate my husband! I not only want to divorce him, but I want to make things as tough for him as I possibly can."

"I know just how you should proceed," the old counselor assured her. "Start showering him with compliments and indulging his every whim. Then, just when he knows how much he needs you—you start divorce proceedings. You'll fracture him!"

The wife decided this was sound advice. Six months later the counselor met her at a dinner, and asked, "Are you still following my suggestion?"

"I am," said the wife. "Then how about filling your divorce papers?" pursued the counselor.

"Are you out of your head?" countered the wife indignantly. "We're divinely happy! I love him with all my heart!"

ONE unusual piece in a new line of luggage is a 22-inch case, slim and lightweight, with soft sides to make packing more flexible. It holds up to 11 dresses, has its own scale so you can weigh as you pack (for plane flights). It needs no unpacking, can be zipped open and hung up. Other cases in the line feature Koroseal covering, making them scuff-resistant, completely washable. Also: drawbolt locks of chromium and liftoomatic hinges that keep tops up until they are pulled down.

FUN AND GAMES: For golfers, a home practice putting course that can be used indoors or out. It has a grass-like runway covering, an incline providing the equivalent of a 10-foot putt, holes set for testing skill, automatic ball return. Sturdy plywood frame is compact for storage.

For bridge players, a bridge table cover which presents in legible print before each player all data needed for point count and honor count bidding. It's designed for beginners—and to make possible "bridge without thinking for the tired husband," puffs the enterprising maker.

FOR THE KIDS: Roller skates with wheels made of a synthetic rubber designed to cut skating noise by 75 percent and prevent slips on any type of skating floor. The wheels are available for replacing worn-out ones on existing skates. . . . A space builder toy for kids from 7 years old up. It's a modern version of building blocks—without blocks' limitations. Combining hardwood cubes, with holes drilled in the center of all edges, plus wood dowels or rods to connect the blocks, and rubber loops for suspension construction, it makes sturdy 10 foot towers, massive 8 foot bridges, tepees with tent cover, a strange part of town. Secrets of Charm
A Way Out of the Rut

HERE'S A PLAN TO MAKE YOU A MORE INTERESTING PERSON.

THIS week needn't be just like all the rest. Here's a plan to lift it by the bootstraps out of a rut, and you with it, by giving you new things to think about. Perhaps new interests that will last a long time.

You may call the plan a Five Day Eye-Opener. It's plotted to help you do what's most important for almost everyone to do now and then—to make a special effort to change habits, to depart from hoing your own roo so narrowly your eyes are closed to everything else.

THURSDAY. Make a point of talking to someone you've wished to know better, and make the talk long enough to grow interesting.

FRIDAY. Start a new book on a subject that's far apart from your own daily life and continue to read it over the weekend.

MONDAY: Read your newspaper differently today. Read a columnist you don't ordinarily take time for, items on subjects that are unfamiliar, the editorials and the news thoroughly than usual.

TUESDAY. Take a walk down an unfamiliar street, perhaps in a strange part of town. Turn a sharp eye on everything there is to be seen.

WEDNESDAY. Take in a show, stage, movie, television or radio—any kind as long as it is a different kind than you're used to and has something to offer that's worthwhile. Or, go to a lecture.

sometimes difficult, it can be done by maintaining good-humored good sense.

Answer to Question 2.

Doubtful. Psychologists E. F. MacCaslin and E. J. McGuigan measured the rifle steadiness of soldiers shooting at targets at Fort Knox and at Fort Jackson.

It was concluded that practice did not improve rifle steadiness a particle, although there was improvement in some other respects. Experts say you should shoot the instant you see the target through sights. Trying to hold on the target after sighting does no good.

Answer to Question 3.

False. As the late Albert Einstein demonstrated, it is not even the same for any given person at different times.

There is no such thing as absolute time—some stable thing we can measure. Einstein said: "To a boy with his girl, two hours seem like two minutes; but when you're sitting on a hot stove, two minutes seem like two hours." Time is in your mind and not something outside yourself that you can grab hold of.

Don't Skimp on Fabrics

By Elizabeth Hillyer

A LITTLE SATIN, OR A LOT OF COTTON?

WICH should it be, the little of an expensive fabric that the budget allows—or plenty of an inexpensive fabric?

There can be no doubt of the answer.

Skimpy curtains or ruffling of any kind look pinched, and the style of the room is shortchanged no matter how fine the fabric is.

A well-chosen inexpensive fabric, a good thing of its kind, on the other hand looks luxurious if it's used generously, the windows or bed look handsomely treated, and the style of the room is enhanced.

It's quite true now that the difference isn't always between satins and cottons in the way it once was because satins can be less fine and cottons so intricately woven and excellent in quality that they cost more.

But it's always a good plan to buy the best or very nearly the best quality of the fabric you buy, whether it is rich or simple. If the budget doesn't stretch to a good quality of one type, skip it and change to the best quality of a more modest fabric.

RIBBED BLACK WOOL

Ribbed black wool that gives the effect of being knitted rather than woven is the fabric used for several attractive fall costumes. It has been chosen by one designer for a dress and jacket ensemble. The dress is a slim shirtwaist style and the knee-length coat has bosky emphasis. Another wool ensemble consists of a coat dress and matching bolero jacket.

MRS. J. deK.

"I have a sofa in a cerise and tan striped cover. Is it permissible to use flowered draperies or chairs with it? How would a soft green be for the rug, and rose for the walls?"

Flowers and stripes are quite compatible. The green rug should be pleasing, but remember that rose will warm the room, and too bright a shade should be avoided.

Great Outdoors

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO. WHEN I WAS YOUNG and had rocks in my head, I did a spell of camping out. And I can still feel the rocks in my back.

My bed, as I recall, was three blankets. Folded and pinned into a sleeping bag with oversize safety pins. We cooked on an open fire and curious white-face cattle of Wyoming came around and inquired who was smelling up the countryside with coffee.

Ah, well, dear hearts, all this has changed. And I am happy to report that the Great Outdoors is getting more like the Great Indoors. And about time, too. A night on the lone prairie these days and they would surely bury me there.

Editors are squares. I don't mean to change the subject and shall get back to it immediately.

"WHY DON'T YOU go camping?" said the editor. (I have not camped since I stopped working for merit badges and started working for money.)

"You mean like sleeping out in the yard?" I said.

"Camping," said the editor, filling his lungs with cigarette smoke. He raised the window briefly, sniffed and slammed it shut. "The life of the pioneers! The dewy morning! The splash of a trout in a mountain stream. The rustle of the deer in the glade."

"How about I should go out to the zoo and see them rustle," I said.

"I've tried and I've tried," sighed the editor. "Do you realize your opportunity here? The last of the mountain men. Why, I'd give a year's pay for your chance."

"I'll take it," I said.

"Report back when you've finished," said the editor briskly. "If you could manage to have some adventures, it would improve your copy. Like breaking a leg. We could get Air-Sea Rescue to fly a helicopter in. They do it free so it wouldn't hurt the budget."

WELL, I FIGURE it will take me a year to go camping anyway. It will take that long to get through the catalogues. The catalogues are the best part of camping. Because you can do it all in your own living room. Let me tell you how you camp these days.

You should have a tent. Hettick Manufacturing Co. of Toledo makes a tent with a screened-in front porch. For $113.50, you can get sleeping bag from Abercrombie and Fitch that is guaranteed to keep you warm in 20-degree below weather.

This is merely basic equipment. Survival stuff.

You should get halazone tablets to purify your water. You should get a waterproof matchbox with a built-in compass and whistle in case you are lost.

I think the way you use this is you blow the whistle first. Then you consult the compass which tells you which way is north. Then you set fire to yourself. However, you cannot set fire to yourself without a permit. So be careful.

IT IS A POOR OUTDOORSMAN these days who does not have a spring-driven razor. In case the battery on your car wears down and you are unable to plug in the portable type.

You should have a canvas bucket. There is a "shower bucket" so you can shower without jumping in the water. You should have an ax and a knife and a package of fire starter.

The next step is to pick a camp site. Fortunately, most states have picked them for you and even run in electricity. This simplifies things a good deal and I think with a little ingenuity you could even rig up an electric chair.

This would be good for hunters. They could wait until a deer sat down in it and give him the hotfoot. It would save ammunition.

There is no end to the comfort of camping these days. On the other hand you could take your catalogues and go to a motel. So why don't you?

Overanxious Mother

By Angelo Patri

OVERANXIOUS mothers get too close to their children, seeing every little variation in behavior and attitudes, wanting to live for them, shield them from grief and hand them a lovely, easy life on a platter. Any such effort must fail and result in unhappiness for the children and their mothers.

"Pussy" was in her first year in school and she was very shy, would not speak to the teacher unless forced to do so and then in a whisper. The teacher was understanding about it and kept at a safe distance, planning to get nearer to the child and win her over by showing her that relations between them could be pleasant. Mother thought this method too slow and kept prodding the child, visiting the teacher, telephoning to the office to ask that something be done to help Pussy be more outgoing."

THIS MADE PUSSY think she was of more importance to people when she withdrew from them than otherwise, so her shyness increased. So did her mother's anxiety, all of which was needless. Had the mother trusted the teacher, Pussy would soon have lost her shy attitude.

There often is too much attention paid to the slight deviations from standard behavior in children of all ages. Mothers who are overanxious see too much, note details too closely. Son's shoes are not too clean and although he protests that he must be in school 15 minutes earlier today, because—he is sent back to attend to those shoes. It could be that Son's appointment with his teacher that morning was more important in his eyes than the lack of polish on his shoes.

GRANTED, these are deviations from home standards, but at the same time, they are not major calamities. Give the children a chance to ease up a little now and then and wait to see if the slip is going to be repeated. A word of admonition, the "word in season," can be spoken if there is likely to be habitual deviation. Children must be allowed to make some mistakes—we hope minor ones—in order to learn. The teacher, very likely, would whisper a word or two in the ears of the youngsters and it would be likely to enter there with more force than those of the anxious mother whose words had become routine practice.

Try to stand off a little from the children, retreating more and more as they develop personal power. They can never be spared life's bruises, and it is best to allow them to form their own powers of resistance. They must do that in the end.

Experts Look to Atom for Space Flight

Nuclear Fuel, or Some Other Power Source, Viewed as Next Step After Satellite Launching

By Edwin Diamond

THIS is the second of two articles on the practical possibilities and problems of space travel by a science writer who visited big secret United States rocket and guided missile bases and talked to the world's foremost space scientists.

WHITE SANDS, N.M. Sept. 26 (INS).

WITH all their power and precision, today's rockets are comparable to the first awkward plane Orville and Wilbur Wright built in a bicycle shop 52 years ago. The Wright brothers' plane represented a revolutionary break-through when it went 120 feet in 12 seconds from Kill Devil Hill, near Kitty Hawk, N.C., on Dec. 17, 1903.

Today, a United States Air Force B-36 can fly 10,000 miles nonstop and drop a 10,000-pound load along the way. The B-36's wingspread alone is twice the length of that first Kitty Hawk flight.

The proposed space satellite recently approved by President Eisenhower will be another revolutionary breakthrough. But rocket experts expect the space crafts of the future to dwarf the spaceplane vehicle in power and performance just as the B-36 towers over the Kitty Hawk plane. And in a shorter span of time.

Nuclear power plants are considered the next—and most important—breakthrough in space flight. They are important because any interplanetary vehicle must carry its own fuel supply. A vast amount of fuel is required to propel present rockets, and that limits flights.

Nuclear engines would make possible crew-carrying ships able to range over our and other solar systems.

Powder and liquid rockets are not new, of course—the former dates back to thirteenth century China. Liquid propellants are better but more expensive than solid propellants, according to Charles Mansur and Lowell Randall, two rocket engineers in the Army Ordnance laboratories at White Sands Proving Grounds, N.M.

Mansur was an associate of the late Prof. Robert Goddard, the father of American rocketry. Both he and Randall are propulsion specialists—and both are convinced "present chemical means of rocket propulsion will not get you all the way in interplanetary flight."

Said Randall:

"We have reached about 50 per cent of the efficiency limits of liquid chemical propellants. This means we are nearing the ceiling on rocket performance unless we can find some other form of power."

"Perhaps a nuclear reactor, which does not require the big fuel load of present conventional rocket motors, is the next step. Of course, there is much of the rocket 'art' we still do not know, but it is the feeling here that you will have to go outside the chemical field for new sources of energy."

Two Chicago propulsion specialists, Stephen J. Fraenkel and Vincent Cushing of Armour Research Foundation, Illinois Institute of Technology, also look toward a nuclear power plant as the solution to long distance rocket travel. Cushing believes any real interplanetary travel is "tied in closely with the development of a nuclear power plant." With such a plant, Cushing says, there would be two important advantages.

"Getting out of this world" with conventional chemical fuels is dependent on the initial velocity of escape," he said.

"This means you need a big blast-off with its attendant tremendous G-pull (gravity) pull on your human crew. With a nuclear power plant, take-off could be one of gradual acceleration—it would be as uneventful inside the craft as it is sitting here in this office talking to you."

In addition, the great amount of space taken up by the chemical fuels could be used for payload—equipment and passengers—a board a nuclear-powered ship."

To achieve such a power plant, Cushing recommends a "crash" program similar to the Manhattan District project which led to the development of the first atomic bomb.

"Given a few billion dollars and from two to five years, scientists not only could design but build a nuclear-powered engine suitable for interplanetary flight," he said. "This would be a gamble only in the sense that no one could predict the eventual final form or size of the atomic engine. About its feasibility, however, there is wide agreement."

Fraenkel agreed and added:

"If such an atomic engine were in existence, and especially if it could be planned to travel at speeds approaching that of light, then the exploration of other solar systems might not be out of the question."

Other potential means of propulsion have been or are being studied. Among them: the fusion process of the hydrogen bomb, electrical, ionic and photonic propulsion and solar radiation.

But Dr. Saenger is not overlooking the possibility that the Russians may be "hot on the trail."

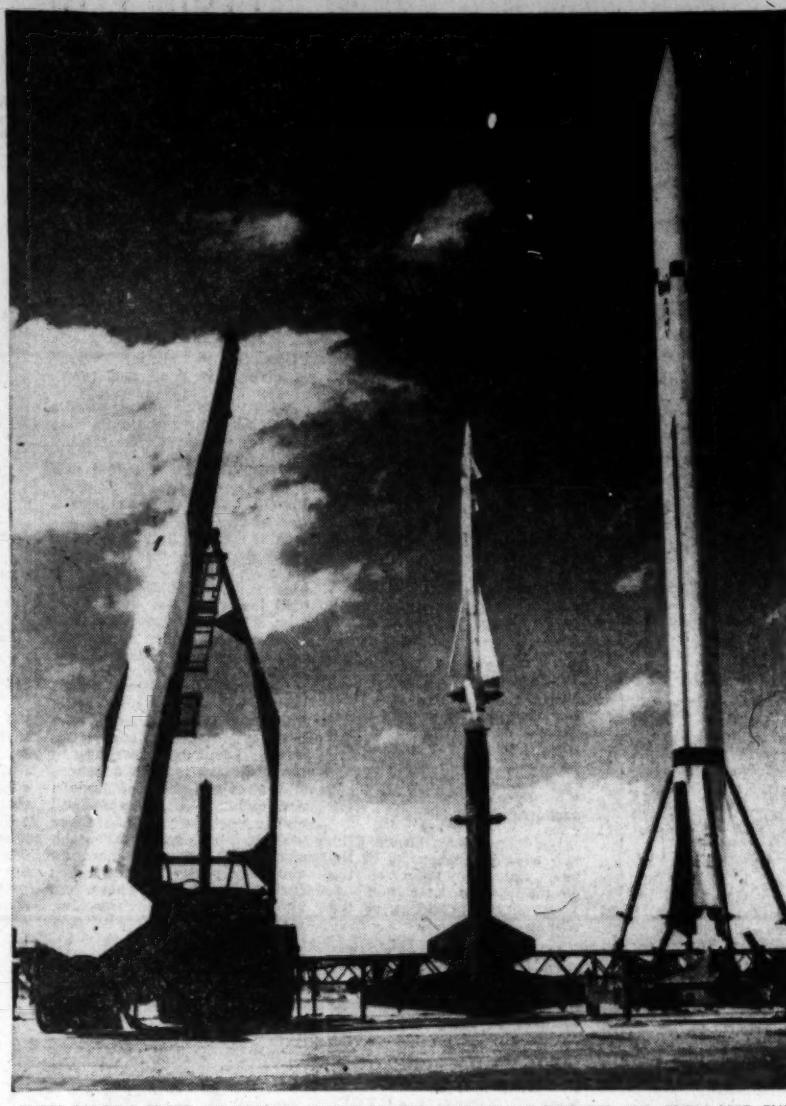

And what about the United States?

Informed sources say the United States is also "hot on the trail" at perhaps two key research laboratories, one in the Southwest, the other in the Far West.

According to the experts who can comment, neither the United States nor the U.S.S.R. has reached the mechanical "working stage"—as yet.

"We could send a rocket out to circle close to the moon's surface and take pictures and movies and record temperature and other data," he said. "Perhaps the entire trip could be televised. Then on the basis of this information we can go about planning to send an expedition to the moon. Maybe animals would precede men. After that would come the other planets in our solar system, Mars being first."

The question: When will man fly to the moon and the planets?

THREE MODELS FROM THE PRESENT UNITED STATES ARSENAL OF ROCKETS ARE, FROM LEFT, THE "HONEST JOHN," "NIKE" AND "CORPORAL." THESE ROCKETS, SAY EXPERTS, ARE COMPARABLE IN TERMS OF FUTURE DEVELOPMENT TO THE FIRST PLANE BUILT BY THE WRIGHT BROTHERS.

would change its position relative to earth." Some 20 years after this was accomplished, Fraenkel believes, a manned satellite "to explore space beyond the vicinity of the earth" could be launched.

"The moon, and possibly Mars, would seem to be the only inviting destinations within our solar system," he said. The other planets closer to the sun would be too hot for comfort, and those farther from the sun would be both too cold and too far away to permit trips on chemically powered vehicles within a normal life-span."

Rocket experts Willy Ley, Von Braun and astronomer Fred L. Whipple have worked out a detailed campaign for the conquest of the moon. Key to success is a space platform 1000 miles up beyond the earth's air ocean in empty space. The platform, "big brother" to the proposed American research satellite, would be used as a space assembly point.

PROF. HERMAN OBERTH, a pioneer rocket theorist, recently predicted a project similar to Von Braun's could take men to the moon within "10 to 15 years." He places the round trip cost at "roughly $300,000,000."

Oberth arrived in the United States early in July to join fellow rocketeers at the secretively walled Red Stone Arsenal. The nature of his work has not been revealed.

Shortly after his arrival, Oberth said the Russians also have plans to reach the moon, and added:

"We will have to keep busy to beat them."

American intelligence officers know the Russians have ex-German rocket experts in their laboratories, too. A native Russian, Prof. Kiril Stanyukovich, has published his plans for a trip to the moon.

Some six months ago, Russian Scientists announced that "creating an artificial satellite is feasible." Shortly afterward, they formed a special "Commission for Interplanetary Communication."

Many American rocket experts who attended the annual meeting of the International Astronautical Federation in Copenhagen, Denmark, last month brought back disturbing reports about Russian space progress.

One official of the American Rocket Society, who asked not to be quoted by name, said:

"There has been widespread comment that the White House satellite announcement was a temporary, unmanned 'moon' which will circle back into the earth's atmosphere and disintegrate within a few days."

"We would discuss techniques of travel, the problems of interplanetary flight and the possibilities of life on other planets," he said. "We especially speculated about life on Mars, which we believe living underground because of the cold climate. Today, the best information is that only a low form of plant life exists on Mars, like our lichens."

From these modest rocket society beginnings with their free-wheeling flights of interplanetary imagination, the entire German rocket program grew. Steinhoff, with other rocket society graduates like Werner Von Braun, Hermann Oberth and Karl Dornberger, were drawn together at Peenemuende on the Baltic sea coast. There Hitler's vengeance weapons—V-1 and V-2—were developed.

In the closing days of World War II, with Russian troops rushing in from the east and American-British spearheads moving in from the west, Von Braun, Steinhoff and some 200 other German rocket technicians chose to flee West and surrender. They also helped the Allies seize over 100 unused V-2s; in late 1945 the Germans and the V-2s were brought to the New Mexican desert.

The site chosen offered ample space, remoteness and cloudless skies to assist observation. Eventually a rocket "field" 100 miles long and 40 miles wide was acquired.

Dr. Steinhoff, now a United States citizen and active in the American Rocket Society, can talk freely about the German past and the interstellar future.

"Potentially, it is an unlimited source of energy. To harness it would be a revolution surpassing the harnessing of atomic energy."

Dr. Fraenkel says a combination of nuclear power and light power is "the key to conquer space."

"Space flight is feasible," he says, "but there are many things we still don't know about space phenomena."

Among the problems he thinks will have to be studied are meteorite collisions, naked cosmic radiation, space "disorientation" and entropy, or the behavior of molecules in space. He asks: "Do the laws of gas dynamics hold in space or do molecules bounce unpredictably?"

SPACE travel, Steinhoff emphasizes, is not the primary mission of any of the military research centers.

"Rockets and guided missiles for national defense are the goals of all research supported by the Department of Defense," he said. "But he carefully guards his words about present rocket "space travel. Steinhoff believes that the first trip to the moon, logically following the successful satellite program, will be accomplished by an unmanned rocket."

"We could send a rocket out to circle close to the moon's surface and take pictures and movies and record temperature and other data," he said. "Perhaps the entire trip could be televised. Then on the basis of this information we can go about planning to send an expedition to the moon. Maybe animals would precede men. After that would come the other planets in our solar system, Mars being first."

The experts have a routine answer to a question that has become routine since the United States announced plans to launch the space satellite.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

MOST of the bridge questions sent in to this writer are susceptible to straightforward answers, but there are notable exceptions. For example, the question may be put: "My right-hand opponent opened the bidding with one club, and I followed with one diamond, holding five diamonds headed by the A-K—but nothing on the side. Later, several of us got into an argument about my overall, the others insisting that I had my neck out, vulnerable. How about this? Doesn't the advantage of getting in the bid overtake the slight danger of getting doubled at that low level?"

There is no sound answer to this question—unless one knows the other players, and most specifically, the opponent next to speak. Is he a "fast doubler," or (like too many players) is he timid about doubling a one-bid for a penalty?

Let's look at a case: Both sides vulnerable.

Birthday Party Planned By Mrs. Henry Ittleson

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MRS. HENRY ITTLESON, who lives at Hampshire House, New York, will celebrate her eightieth birthday tomorrow in St. Louis, where she was born Sept. 27, 1875. To her family and many friends here as well as to New Yorkers who know her for her extraordinary energy and capabilities in the field of mental health, in which she has been active for 40 years, her visit will be a great occasion.

From New York Mrs. Ittleson has sent invitations to a cocktail supper on the Starlight roof of the Chase Hotel from 6 to 9 o'clock tomorrow night at which 185 guests will help her celebrate. She arrived yesterday and will be joined at the Chase by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ittleson Jr., and her son, Lee Frank Ittleson; her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Frank, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry S. Frank, all of New York. Other out-of-town guests will be Dr. William Menninger, secretary of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan., and Mrs. Menninger; and Arthur O. Dietz, president of the Commercial Investment Trust of New York, previously known as the Commercial Credit and Investment Corp., founded by the late Mr. Ittleson in St. Louis in 1908, and Mrs. Rita Morganthau, both of New York.

St. Louis guests will include Ethan A. H. Shepley and Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, chancellor and former chancellor, respectively, of Washington University, and their wives; Mary Institute's Headmaster and Mrs. Ronald Beasley; Mrs. Louis P. Aloe, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baer, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Gildea, Mr. and Mrs. Morton D. May, Morton J. May, Charles Nagel, director of City Art Museum, and Mrs. Nagel; Mrs. Aaron Rauh, Mrs. Charles M. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney M. Shoenerberg, Mrs. Marie Steinberg and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Stix.

Mrs. Ittleson Educated in St. Louis.

THE former Miss Blanche Frank, Mrs. Ittleson is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Frank. She was graduated from Mary Institute in 1894 and later qualified as a kindergarten teacher. She first became interested in helping children while attending Washington University School of Social Economics from 1910 to 1912, majoring in sociology and psychology.

One of her most important projects at present is the Henry Ittleson Center for Child Research in Riverdale, N.Y., opened in 1953 by Mrs. Ittleson and her two sons in memory of her late husband. The center, of which she is chairman, is dedicated to research in and treatment of emotionally disturbed children.

Mrs. Ittleson's philanthropic activities began before World War I, during which she was chairman of the Volunteers' Women's Committee, formed to provide accessory clothing for United States soldiers at home and abroad. In 1918 she founded the Vocational Adjustment Bureau to help problem girls, establishing a sheltered workshop and a research project for mental hygiene in public education which has become a permanent part of New York's Board of Education program. The V.A.B. expanded for 32 years until 1951 when Mrs. Ittleson felt that public agencies had become sufficiently aware of the mental health problem and the bureau was dissolved.

Shortly after that she began to plan for the Center in Riverdale which has been the realization of her dreams. An officer and board member of the National Association for Mental Health, she flew last month to Istanbul to represent the association at a world federation. She is a director of numerous organizations concerned with mental health, including the Menninger and Riggs Foundations and the Ittleson Family Foundation.

Miss Green Returns From Year in Europe.

MISS CONSTANCE GREEN, post-debutante daughter of Mrs. Robert Chase Green, 7751 Kingsbury boulevard, University City, returned Friday to St. Louis after spending a year in Europe. Miss Green, together with Miss Carolyn Borders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Borders, 217 Linden avenue, Clayton, departed last September to spend their junior year at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

During their vacations from the university the young women traveled on the continent. Miss Borders returned to St. Louis in June but Miss Green remained in Edinburgh. During the Music Festival there this summer, she and a group of students rented a Masonic hall and opened a cafe for the visitors, serving coffee and cakes. Miss Green will remain in St. Louis this year, probably studying at a secretarial school.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

ABOUT four months ago my cousin and his family came here to learn my father's trade. They lived with us for about a month. During that time my father and cousin transacted a business deal but right at the last minute my cousin's wife backed out.

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

father. I don't like to argue or hurt others, Martha, but what can I do? She comes almost every day and I act as cold toward her as possible, but she doesn't notice. Please help me.

PLAIN DISGUSTED,

Unfortunately, many families seem to have to put up with a busy-body, tale-bearing relative who glories in gossip, but for your cousin's sake you may have to accept her for what she is and make up your mind that she won't disrupt the family too much. You are wise to disregard the stories she tells, but you can do more than that. Simply tell her you'd rather not listen to them. Then change the subject and don't let her poison your mind with stories about all the relatives. Maybe a deaf ear to her gossips would discourage her more than an icy reception.

I AM A BUSINESS WOMAN 34 years old and have never been married. After our parents died my brother and I decided to stay on in our family home and since he also hasn't married I have kept house for him. Even though I work downtown, I have all the responsibility of the house, prepare breakfast and dinner, do the cleaning on Saturday and Sunday and do much of the laundry. My brother is pleasant to me, but he never lifts his hand to help at all. Now I have met a man my own age, a widower, and he has been dating me the past few months. He has begun to talk of our getting married, but when I mention that to my brother, he has a fit. He doesn't seem to have anything against this fellow but just doesn't want me to get married. I don't want to hurt him but don't you think I have a right to lead my own life?

SISTER.

I certainly do. Your brother simply hates to give up the nice soft life he has been leading, with you doing all the work and supporting yourself at the same time. Don't get married just to run away from your responsibilities at home—because you will have the same responsibilities in your new home—but if you care for this man and if you have reason to believe he would be a good husband and you could be happy together, go ahead and make your own decision. The longer you are a slave to your brother, the harder it will be to break away.

Real Compliments

By Ruth Millett

ONE of the pleasant things in life is paying a compliment that obviously makes someone else feel good. But not all compliments hit their mark. Some are spoken with so little feeling they don't carry any warmth.

Some are so routine they seem as much a part of the social scene as "How do you do" or "I'm glad to have met you."

Some are spoken grudgingly, making every one uncomfortable.

Some are so general they are scarcely noticed. "Nice place you have here" or "Good speech you made last night."

IF YOU WANT your own compliments to be appreciated and remembered pay attention to those you receive that you long remember.

A long-remembered compliment is often one that is given in an unusual way.

Instead of saying "How nice you look tonight" when she sees you at a party, a wise friend telephones the next day and says, "I just had to call and tell you how lovely you looked last night. That shade of blue is wonderful on you." Now that compliment you will not only remember, but you'll always wear the blue dress with pride, and you may even go out and buy something else in the same shade.

Instead of paying a direct compliment a friend says something about you to someone else, and the good word finally reaches you, second-hand.

A SECOND-HAND COMPLIMENT, unlike most second-hand things, is even better than a first-hand one for you assume that the person who speaks well of you to others really means what he says. And it is also nice to know that someone else heard the compliment.

And then there is the long-delayed compliment that grows in value as it grows in age. The friend who remarks on the wonderful apple pie he had at your house a year ago makes far more of an impression than the guest who praises the pie while he is eating it—and then forgets about it.

There are all kinds of compliments and it only takes a little thought to make sure that yours are the kind that are long remembered.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I ordered a floral piece to be sent to a funeral and in some way the order was lost and the flowers never were sent. I inquired when I noticed that the charge did not appear on my bill. What can I do to let the bereaved family know that we have not forgotten them? It's really quite distressing to me.

Answer: You simply write and tell them you are distressed to find that the florist hadn't sent them as you had ordered and that they are being sent now in very deep sympathy. You would, of course, send cut flowers.

Loretta Young's Gratitude

Convalescing Actress Cites Prayer and Letters

By Aline Mosby

HOLLYWOOD,
Sept. 26 (UPI).

ORETTA YOUNG, home after a serious illness and two operations that kept her in a hospital bed nearly five months, told today how she got well: "Prayers and letters did it."

"I got so I would ask, 'Any mail?' smiled the actress as she told of her brush with death. "All the letters were so completely unselfish—hurry up and get well and come back to TV."

The graceful star of television's "The Loretta Young Show" looks better than ever following a two-month rest at her summer home at Ojai, although doctors haven't decided when she can return to her program.

Seven months ago she lay in pain from a serious infection, peritonitis, in a hospital at nearby Oxnard. She was allowed no visitors, no phone calls, not even flowers in her room. She could not read because her vision was blurred from heavy sedatives. Her only touch with the outside world came when nurses and her stacks of get-well letters from fans.

"So many promised to pray for me. I know it's the prayers that did it. I remember one letter from a woman who had been operated on for cancer. I had been feeling rather low that day, and I then felt like a jerk for complaining."

LORETTA ENTERED the hospital the day after Easter, and "if I had known how long I would be there, I would have despaired."

"I later knew how serious it was," she said. "I remember one bad night I said to the nurse, 'This is dying.' She said, 'No, it's just a spasm.' It went on three hours. I went into shock. There were times I was in such pain I was afraid I wouldn't die."

"One day I said to the chaplain, 'Will you say a prayer for me. I am supposed to learn patience and fortitude.'

LORETTA YOUNG . . . SHE LEARNED PATIENCE AND FORTITUDE.

that whatever I am supposed to learn by this pain, I'll learn!" Finally I realized what it was—patience and fortitude. Sometimes the Lord has to throw you down, to give you time to look up.

"As difficult as the pain was, it was the best thing that happened to me. All my life I've been afraid of pain. Now I'm less afraid. And coming through this gives you a deeper sense of appreciation of life."

The star's TV sponsor insisted on keeping her program going and her friends, including Rosalind Russell, volunteered to appear in her place.

"I cried when I heard that," she said.

Loretta insisted she was not a victim of television and that the illness "was not a breakdown." But on doctor's orders the once-thin actress raised her 110 pounds to 115.

"I eat six meals a day now," she said with a laugh.

"And I have another rule—I never will discuss my operation!"

But the mother was the one who really suffered, because she had to witness the suffering of her child. And she loved her child as she had never loved the man for whom 20 years before, she had sacrificed her reputation.

Good Teeth Needed for Good Health

By Josephine Lowman

FOR too few people realize that good teeth not only are important for good looks but that they also have a direct influence on health. There is a definite connection between mouth hygiene and vitality.

Proper care of gums is important, and Vitamin C which we find in citrus fruits such as oranges, lemons, etc., aid in keeping them in fine condition. Massaging them will help keep them firm and white.

OUR TEETH MUST BE in such good condition that we can chew our food thoroughly. Missing teeth make this impossible. People often eat inadequately because of the difficulty of masticating their food. Missing teeth, of course, may also change the contour of the face to some extent.

Naturally, cleanliness is one of the first rules for good dental care and hygiene. We should brush our teeth whenever possible immediately following each meal. Dental floss is a necessity if we are to reach all of the food particles which may be lodged between the teeth.

WE NEED PLENTY OF CALCIUM and phosphorus and sunshine. Our general health and nutrition have an effect on our teeth, which can have such a big effect on us. Here are three more hints about care of the teeth:

Visit your dentist at least twice a year for a general check-up. Little cavities grow into big ones.

When you drink lemon juice in water (a fine health habit) take the liquid through a straw so that it does not come in contact with the enamel.

Watch your mental and emotional outlook. Times of strain have been correlated with gum-line cavities.

Had just learned an unsavory episode of her mother's girlhood. It was not pleasant to see the older woman accept her daughter's reprimands. Nor was it pleasant to see the girl so lacking in charity. International Pattern fashion editors make a point of stopping off in Dublin on their way to the international collections is Irene Gilbert, a newly recognized authority on good design and subtle styling. This model with its "pick-up" tucks in the midriff is a modified reflection of the important beltless mode, for while the tucks do not exactly ignore the waistline, they give the amount of definition American women prefer. In spite of its great chic and detail, the pattern consists of only six pieces and is, therefore, very easy to make. The tucking which widens at the bottom releases soft pleats for a graceful skirt. The high neckline with its slight V extends around the back into a collar. Make it in a surfaced lightweight wool for daytime or in crepe, shantung or taffeta for dress.

MORE FLAVOR PER CUP

Folger's skillful blending and roasting of nature's most flavorful coffees makes the difference!

Folger's, you see, starts with only the choicest coffees . . . Mountain-Grown coffees that are naturally richer, heartier, more flavorful.

They blend and prepare these finer coffees in an unique way, with their century-old Folger "touch" that produces not only a richer flavor, but a truly distinctive flavor no other coffee can match. And because Folger's blends to a flavor, Recipe call for grated cheese? Don't bother with the grater, run cheese through the food chopper. Put cheese through chopper twice if you want it to look extra pretty.

Saled Garnish

If you have a swivel-blade vegetable parer that is razor-sharp, you can make attractive carrot fancies for a salad garnish. Pare the carrots and cut paper-thin lengthwise slices from them; refrigerate the slices, covered with feed water. The carrot slices will curl up into attractive shapes after a while and may be drained and used. Besides being used atop a salad, they are also attractive perched over black olives in a glass bowl.

CHAPTER 16.

ARTHUR'S unexpected appearance made Donna's elaborate preparations seem ridiculous. When he had departed, Peter apologized.

"I couldn't get out of it. Donna. He asked me what I was doing this evening so I told him. I had no idea he would insist on coming in with me."

"It doesn't matter," she said but it did and they both knew it. "You were so prompt I hadn't changed my dress."

"You look fine to me. But if you'd like to change we can pretend I haven't arrived yet."

"We're pretending enough as it is," she declared. It seemed silly to change to the pale blue dress she had planned to wear after he had already seen her in the sweater and skirt she had worn to the market.

"Are you annoyed with me or with Arthur?" Peter demanded.

"With myself," she admitted.

"Everything I do or say to Arthur is wrong."

The phone rang before he could reply. Lifting it from the stand Donna answered. It was Ed asking for Peter. Donna put the instrument into his hand without comment. She suspected that he knew who it was, which wasn't strange considering that he had "gone with" Enid for years—whatever that meant.

The conversation was one-sided, with Peter answering in monosyllables which amused Donna. Finally she took pity on him and went to the kitchen. There wasn't much to do but put the dressing on the roulette. The ham could be broiled at the last minute and the yams were in the oven.

A BSORBED in her task of mixing the salad in a wooden bowl she did not realize that Peter was standing in the doorway until he said self-consciously, "Enid is trying to find Arthur. She called the office and when there was no answer she decided we might have stopped to see you."

SORRY for him because he was obviously embarrassed, Donna said. "I suppose she didn't like to ask me. Or maybe she thought I wouldn't tell her."

Peter said gratefully, "Could be. Enid has no confidence in anyone but herself. She is a dictator but Arthur doesn't seem to mind it."

"Arthur is something of a dictator himself."

Donna was removing the ham from the broiling pan. She did not see Peter's face until after he had spoken. "You ought to know," he said.

She stared at him in surprise. "Why Peter Grant, what an unkind remark. If I didn't know better I'd think you were jealous."

"Sorry, Donna, but much as I like Arthur I get a bit fed-up hearing about him. Can't you forget him occasionally?"

T was my plan to write about American Indians this week, but I have postponed that series until next month. Millions of boys and girls have started to study Egypt in history classes, and I think it will be well to answer questions about that country at the present time.

Q. Do modern Egyptians occupy the same land as the ancient Egyptians?

A. The country has nearly the same area as it did long ago. The fertile valley of the Nile river offered a good place for civilization to develop.

Q. Did the people of ancient Egypt originate in Africa?

A. It is believed that the ancestors of the Egyptians moved into Africa from southwestern Asia.

Q. When did the ancestors of the Egyptians migrate to the Nile valley?

A. Although we are without exact knowledge on this point, some historians estimate that the migration took place between 8000 and 10,000 years ago.

Q. If the ancient Egyptians belonged to the white race, why do some pictures show them with brown skins?

A. The babies in Egyptian families had white, or pinkish skins, but the steady sunshine of the country tanned the growing children. The tan was heavy because Egypt then, as now, had little rainfall and few clouds to shield the people from sunshine. Q. Is it true that the ancient Egyptians shaved their heads?

A. It was common for them to cut the hair as close to the head as possible. The same custom was followed in Babylonia. The reason seems to have been connected with sanitation. The
